Wilmington offers Reading Light $4.6m

By a unanimous decision of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, members will offer $4,669,000 for the purchase of the electric plant and such equipment as lines and poles from the Reading Municipal Light Department. The announcement was made at Tuesday's board meeting.

Selectmen said this was the next logical step in the formation of Wilmington's own light department. Appropriation of the funds is subject to town meeting approval.

Over the past five months, selectmen have held several executive sessions with their consultant, attorneys, and members of the Wilmington Finance Committee to discuss strategy relating to the move. They have also participated in two negotiation sessions with the Reading Light Board.

If Reading Light refuses the offer, selectmen said they would ask the Department of Public Utilities to step in as mediator.

Wilmington has taken two votes in town meeting approving the town's leaving the Reading Light system.

Residential tax rate increases by 54 cents

by Arlene Surprenant
For the first time since 1983, when Wilmington started classifying the tax rate, homeowners will have a tax increase. Since Prop. 2 1/2, property has been classified as residential, industrial, commercial, open space, and personal property. Residential and open space have been taxed at one rate, while commercial, industrial and personal (CIP) have been taxed at a higher rate.

During a tax classification hearing for FY 88 Tuesday night, selectmen approved a residential rate of $14.37 per thousand. This represents an increase of 54 cents over FY 87. They also approved an industrial rate of $22.86 per thousand, which works out to a 56 cent increase over FY 87. The figures were recommended by Principal Assessor Anthony Krzeminski and the Wilmington Board of Assessors.

On an average Wilmington home, assessed at $100,000, this would mean a tax increase of $54 per year. For an office building with 1000 square feet, the increase would be about $100. On an industrial building valued at one million dollars, the increase would be $560.

As in past years the figures are adjusted from an overall rate. The assessors start by figuring an "equalized rate" which this year is $18.44 per thousand.

According to Krzeminski, Wilmington is in line with neighboring communities with its "very stable" tax rate. He also pointed out though it doesn't work out to much, Wilmington industries will be getting "a break" for the first year.

The rates will now be sent to the state revenue department. When tax bills are sent out in approximately one month, they will reflect the new figures, said Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski.

During the evening, Krzeminski also discussed re-evaluation procedures, which will begin January, 1988 and continue through the following fall. The process is mandated by Proposition 2 1/2 and undertaken every three years. He invited anyone who has reason to question his assessment to take advantage of the department's open door policy.

The Boston based architectural firm is the preference of Jay Donovan, chairman of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority, and Executive Director Michael Matt. Once the authority reviews the preliminary proposal submitted by WFA and the contract, members are expected to approve the firm at its next regularly scheduled meeting.

the DPW Commissioner involved with the original by-pass plan in Wilmington. He is familiar with the town, the project, and what DPW expects to do, said Donovan.

WFA has extensive experience in planning and urban design projects. The firm recently completed a design study of North Massachusetts Avenue in Cambridge. It has also been involved in such projects as a market and parking study in Salem, development of a Town River Bay Master Plan for Quincy, a Charles River Esplanade extension in Boston, and a ground access study for Logan Airport.

Truck knocks out traffic lights again

The traffic lights in Wilmington Center have been knocked out for the second time in two weeks. Each time, the signal control box was struck by a tractor-trailer, allegedly from the same company.

The latest incident occurred on Tuesday afternoon between 4:30 and 4:45. The control box was found to be knocked over, and the lights inoperative.

Officer Robert Vassallo traced a lead to the New England Motor Freight Co. in Billerica. There he found a trailer with yellow paint from the traffic signal, plus fresh scrapes in the metal and scuff marks on the tire.

Vassallo charged the driver, Charles A. McGonagle of Nashua, N.H. with leaving the scene of a property damage accident, and exceeding the weight limit on the Burlington Avenue bridge.

According to Vassallo, McGonagle said he did not realize he had hit the box.

The accident occurred as the truck was making a right turn from Burlington Avenue onto Main Street. The control box was hit by the rear wheels of the trailer as the truck completed a tight turn.

The lights had been knocked out on Oct. 1 by another truck. Kennin Dodson of Lowell has also been charged with leaving the scene and a weight violation.

After some pressure from Safety Officer Bob Shelley and State Rep. Jim Miceli, the state quickly replaced the control box. It was the new box which was hit on Tuesday.

Pumpkin dumped, recovered

Although it only took third place at the Topsfield Fair, Hugh Wiberg's pumpkin eclipsed other pumpkins in the publicity department.

The pumpkin was stolen last week by four young men as a prank, attracting the attention of newspapers and television newscasters.

On Wednesday evening, Wiberg received an anonymous tip as to the whereabouts of the pumpkin. He and a companion proceeded to the location, and sure enough. The pumpkin was in the back of a pickup truck in the yard.

Wiberg returned to his car to tell his companion to fetch the police. Before he could return to the truck, a young man jumped in and drove off.

Officer Larry Redding arrived, and Wiberg then went to the door of the house. He informed the woman who answered the door that

Wiberg asked the woman to tell the man in the pickup truck that if the pumpkin were returned intact, there would be no charges pressed.

A call came over the police radio at that time, saying that the pumpkin had just been dumped near the police station. Hugh and crew then proceeded to the station where they recovered the wandering pumpkin.

He found the pumpkin to have been scratched a bit in its adventures. He believes it lost several pounds.

That night, a brief story on the pumpkin's return capped off the 11 o'clock news on Channel 7.

The pumpkin was entered in the World Pumpkin Federation weigh-off at the Topsfield Fair on Monday where it took third place in New England competition, earning Wiberg a prize of $250. First prize went to a 604-pounder raised by Don Fleming of Morrisville, Vt.

Wiberg declined to identify the pumpkin-nappers.

Condos would be six stories high

by Arlene Surprenant
An Environmental Notification Form (ENF) has been filed on Middlesex Canal Condominiums, Wilmington's third Chapter 774 development.

The ENF was filed in September on behalf of Jay Tighe and Tapp Realty Trust by Mary Trudeau of Daylor Consulting Group. Tighe will apply for funding under the Homeownership Opportunity Program.

The 168 unit complex is proposed for a 15 acre site on Main Street near the Woburn line and Wilmington Town Park. The site is bordered by residential and industrial areas and the Maple Meadow Brook and has a history of soil excavation and the deposit of such fill as brush, stumps, and peat. It was previously owned by Joseph App.

The old Middlesex Canal runs through the property. Two town wetlands are within 300 feet of the property. Four of the 15 acres are considered wetlands and five are in the floodplain, a fact which the developer feels is subject to dispute.

According to the ENF, the project will include three buildings, each six stories high. There will be two parking spaces per unit and daily vehicle trips to and from the site will increase from zero to 1,056 trips.

The proponent expects to tie into town water and the MWRA sewer system via an extension from Eames Street. He reportedly will remove two underground gasoline tanks from their present locations and deposit them off site.

Potential impacts are expected to be felt in such areas as noise, auto related air pollution, aesthetics, wildlife, vegetation, water pollution, and hazardous materials.

Construction, according to the ENF, could begin as early as spring 1988 and be complete by the spring of 1992.

A public hearing on the environmental impacts of the project was held this afternoon by the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency.

Wiberg asked the woman to tell the man in the pickup truck that if the pumpkin were returned intact, there would be no charges pressed.

A call came over the police radio at that time, saying that the pumpkin had just been dumped near the police station. Hugh and crew then proceeded to the station where they recovered the wandering pumpkin.

He found the pumpkin to have been scratched a bit in its adventures. He believes it lost several pounds.

That night, a brief story on the pumpkin's return capped off the 11 o'clock news on Channel 7.

The pumpkin was entered in the World Pumpkin Federation weigh-off at the Topsfield Fair on Monday where it took third place in New England competition, earning Wiberg a prize of $250. First prize went to a 604-pounder raised by Don Fleming of Morrisville, Vt.

Wiberg declined to identify the pumpkin-nappers.

Condos would be six stories high

An Environmental Notification Form (ENF) has been filed on Middlesex Canal Condominiums, Wilmington's third Chapter 77A development.

The ENF was filed in September on behalf of Jay Tighe and Tapp Realty Trust by Mary Trudeau of Daylor Consulting Group. Tighe will apply for funding under the Homeownership Opportunity Program.

The 168 unit complex is proposed for a 15 acre site on Main Street near the Woburn line and Wilmington Town Park. The site is bordered by residential and industrial areas and the Maple Meadow Brook and has a history of soil excavation and the deposit of such fill as brush, stumps, and peat. It was previously owned by Joseph App.

The old Middlesex Canal runs through the property. Two town wetlands are within 300 feet of the property. Four of the 15 acres are considered wetlands and five are in the floodplain, a fact which the developer feels is subject to dispute.

According to the ENF, the project will include three buildings, each six stories high. There will be two parking spaces per unit and daily vehicle trips to and from the site will increase from zero to 1,056 trips.

The proponent expects to tie into town water and the MWRA sewer system via an extension from Eames Street. He reportedly will remove two underground gasoline tanks from their present locations and deposit them off site.

Potential impacts are expected to be felt in such areas as noise, auto related air pollution, aesthetics, wildlife, vegetation, water pollution, and hazardous materials.

Construction, according to the ENF, could begin as early as spring 1988 and be complete by the spring of 1992.

A public hearing on the environmental impacts of the project was held this afternoon by the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency.

Contract settled

AFSCME II, the town employees union, has successfully negotiated a three-year contract with the town of Wilmington. At Tuesday's board meeting, selectmen met with union representatives to sign the document.

The contract specifies a six percent salary increase in the first and third years and a five percent increase in the second year. It provides an opportunity to screen employees suspected of involvement with drugs and alcohol and includes language for physical fitness testing. It also includes an early retirement program, effective October 1, and broadens the ability of clerks to work evening meetings, something outside the scope of their regular jobs.

"I think we've got a good package for the town," said Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski as Selectman Jim Stewart thanked the employees for all their work in the past which he assured them "doesn't go unnoticed."

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

THE 401(K) STILL LOOKS GOOD

Though the new tax law stripped these company-sponsored savings plans of some of their most attractive features, the 401(k) remains one of the best tax shelters around. It offers tax deferral on current income and on what the savings plan earns, and qualified employees can put away and deduct from income more than the IRA ever allowed.

Some benefits have been trimmed: maximum annual contributions are down to $7,000 from the old $30,000 ceiling; it's not so easy to get money out of the account; and companies have had to realign their plans to benefit employees more equally. Where withdrawals were once fairly simple, you now must pay a 10 percent penalty -- in addition to regular income tax -- on any money you take out before you're 59-1/2, and you can't touch earnings or company contributions until that time.

There's another plus: the salary-reduction feature of your 401(k) plan may even bring your income level low enough to enable you to qualify for a partial write-off on a IRA.

Tutors needed in Wilmington schools

Many times during the course of a school year, students will miss extended periods of classtime as a result of some injury or illness. In many of these cases, the students will be sent tutors as part of the home tutoring program.

At the present time, the high school is facing a shortage of available tutors. This is a stipend position with flexible hours.

If you are interested and certified in a given subject area, please call the guidance office at 658-7108.

Sunday, Nov. 1 from 1 to 5: p.m. Student guides will be available to show the campus to visitors. The public is invited.

Win at Topsfield

At the 1987 Topsfield Fair, WHS senior Stephen Pasquale was awarded a first prize blue ribbon for the Junior Amateur Division black and white photography. His photo was of a Cadillac hood emblem. He photographed, developed and mounted the entry in Mr. Hall's Photography III class.

Stephen's mother, Becky Robichaud, received second prize for her macreme fluffy rabbit in the adult amateur craft division.

Special courses offered at Shawsheen Tech

Registrations are now being taken at Shawsheen Tech for adults interested in training for jobs as trouble-shooting technicians, or in the microwave bonding field. Classes begin November 2.

Open to persons who are unemployed, or employed individuals seeking to upgrade their skills to a test technician level, this unique offering can accommodate both beginners and those with some electronics background.

The program is made possible by a competitive, statewide matching grant for $50,000 recently awarded to Shawsheen Tech by Bay State Skills Corporation. Matching funds are being provided by Alpha Industries, Altron and Dynamics Research, who will assist with the training and offer interviews to students who complete the programs. There is no charge to unemployed persons; there is a nominal fee for other registrants.

"We are seeking 35 clients for this program," said John McDermott, assistant superintendent for Community Services. "Because we are offering our training in modules, we can train individuals without electronics skills, as well as those who have prior knowledge."

The technician program includes four, 60-hour modules in measuring techniques and four, 100-hour modules in troubleshooting, according to Paul Davis, Shawsheen electronics instructor who will teach the adult program. "This is primarily hands-on training, with students working individually, at their own pace," Davis said. Davis noted that Shawsheen's measurement laboratory makes this level of instruction possible. Daniel Trainor, Shawsheen Tech Guidance Counselor, will teach resume and interviewing skills as part of the program.

Microwave bonding will be offered as a 115-hour course, with the laboratory portion at Alpha Industries, and guaranteed job placement to completers.

Training will take place from 3 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, beginning November 2. To register, or for more information, call Shawsheen Tech, 667-2111, ext. 103.

Lot redemption blocked by divided board

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington selectmen Tuesday night were divided on a request to allow Oragina Amaro to redeem her foreclosed property on Everett Avenue. The request was made by builder James Banda, who said he wished to combine Amaro's lot with his to make a buildable lot in order to conform to town bylaws. This was the second time the issue came before the board.

Reportedly, Amaro had unknowingly let taxes slide on the property in 1977 and 1982. As a result, the town foreclosed in 1982. According to a general statute, however, the former owner has the right of redemption, provided it's granted by town selectmen.

Jim Stewart and Chairman Bob Cain maintained it would be in the town's best interest to keep the parcel and combine it with an abutting town lot for affordable housing. Bob Doucette and Michael McCoy favored Amaro's claim, saying the town has an obligation to her since she donated conservation land in the past and is a "fine citizen" who has paid taxes on her numerous holdings over the years.

James Banda Sr. also was present to remind the board of the law allowing property redemption by a former owner and to seek "compassion" toward Amaro.

Cain contended that this wasn't a hardship case and a third party would have the most to gain.

A motion to allow the redemption failed because the board was split in its decision.

Car wash given go-ahead for sewer hookup

The owner of the Wilmington Car Wash at 581 Main St., has received the permission of the Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners to go ahead with the planning of a sewer service to connect with the Wilmington sewer main westerly of the railroad tracks.

Bernard Grodzinski, on October 8, told the commissioners that he has other firms, the owners of which wish to participate.

Such a sewer can be costly because of the railroad. There are funds in the state house which presumably will be available to help pay the costs. About a dozen business firms are interested in taking part.

OCTOBER 19

The October 18, 1962 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Hayward Adams of Arlene Avenue was named stock control manager of Charles River Breeding Labs.

Mike Farrell of the Wilmington H.S. football team would spend his 17th birthday, Saturday in Winchester Hospital recovering from a football injury received in the game with Dracut.

D.F. Munroe paper merchants of 351 Middlesex Avenue moved into Wilmington over the weekend.

The WHS hosted students from 11 schools in the Western Division of Mass. Math League. Frank Kelley, head of the WHS Math Dept. entered a team in the league in which the seniors included John Bovitz, Kathleen Harrington, David Dayton and Geraldine McCue; juniors, James Jusuce, Theresa Baldwin, Norman Norton and Janice Baldwin. Paul Bannister was the only sophomore involved.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woodman, after 36 years on Brentwood Avenue, moved to Scottsdale, Arizona.

Seven young men from Wilmington left for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands - Rocco Yentile, Vincent Yentile, James Palmer, James Cuoco, Arthur Lynch, Jr., Robert McHugh and Richard McHugh.

Mike Weinberg, Jr., was elected president of the Wilmington Skating Club, a position his father filled several years ago. Mike replaced Jay Tighe who had to resign due to business pressure.

Airman Fred Kleynen, Jr., of Patterson Road was assigned to Chanute AFB, Illinois.

Wilmington Conservation Commission: The basics

by Elizabeth Sabounjian, M.S.

Conservation Administrator

The Town of Wilmington established a Conservation Commission in 1964 under the power of the Conservation Commission Act (Ch. 40, Section 8C) for the purpose of protecting and promoting the natural resources of the Town. The Wilmington Conservation Commission is made up of seven members who are appointed by the Town Manager from one to three year terms. During the past 23 years it has been active in a variety of environmental protection issues.

An extremely important responsibility of the Conservation Commission is the administration of the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act (Ch. 131, Section 40). Wetlands comprise approximately 25 percent of the Town, and play a major role in the environmental health of the community. For this reason much of the Commission's energy and resources have been directed toward Wetland Protection.

Recently, the Commission has developed a new Open Space Plan for Wilmington. The plan necessary to implement its goals for land acquisition, and to protect valuable watershed areas, wildlife habitats, and opportunities for public recreation and enjoyment.

In the years since its creation, the Wilmington Conservation Commission had endeavored to respond to the always changing needs and interests of the citizens. Past and present membership has included businessmen, lawyers, environmental professionals, students, housewives, senior citizens, and others from varied backgrounds and neighborhoods who are dedicated to conserving Wilmington's natural resources.

The Conservation Commission usually meets the first and third Wednesday of every month. Meeting notices are posted in the Town Hall. Also, all Wetlands Protection Act hearings and meetings are advertised in the Town Crier. The meetings are open to the public and all are encouraged to attend. Additionally, the Commission maintains an office in Town Hall, Room 6, with a part time clerk and full time administrator. Anyone desiring information on any of the Commission's activities may stop by the office or call at 658-3311, ext. 334.

This column will be printed periodically for the education and enjoyment of those who wish to appreciate the natural beauty of Wilmington.

In The Humble Farmer Truth in the 1980s

I'm out of step with the times. Because I don't have a television set I have not yet been alerted to many of the wondrous truths of the 1980's that my up-to-date friends and neighbors have long taken for granted.

Fortunately, I can count on them for enlightenment. Just last night a friend patiently explained to me that one could easily determine the top notch professors at any university by examining the enrollment lists. The best professors are very popular, as evinced by crowded classrooms. They turn away many disappointed students each semester.

On the other hand, the administration knows which professors are dull and unimaginative - they are often forced to cancel classes because no one signs up for them.

That's what I learned last night. Up until then I'd always thought that some classes were crowded because, although the courses were only offered once very other year, they were requisites to graduation. Or because the professors always gave A's. Or because anyone who got through the course could command a breathtaking salary in the job market. And I used to think that some professors had only a few students simply because they demanded 100 percent. They were tough.

My eyes are moist with nostalgic tears after reading an excellent essay - undoubtedly reprinted from a 1987 issue of the Draft Horse Journal. The scene is a small meadow, echoing with the "chicca-chicca" of the horse drawn mower and redolent with bucolic perfumes. A hawk flies up on a limb and boldly watches for scampering mice while the author ruminates the philosophical ramifications for three pages, finally concluding that this could not have happened had he been driving a tractor.

This must be true because it is printed in a book which is popular among folks who gladly lerne teche.

It is a relatively new truth, however, because as recently as 1985 countless birds watched for mice as my tractor and mower growled and barked across dozens of fields. The record should show that previous to 1985, a Ford 4000 SU mowing in third at 2200 rpm could call foxes up out of their dens. Back in those good old days the clanging and banging also attracted cats, dogs and anything else that might eat a frightened, decapitated or crushed mouse. Which probably includes your two-year-old.

Another truth of the 1980's would be labeled "The Bambi Syndrome" - if labeling were permitted in the 1980's - for now the only animals people have compassion for have brown eyes.

Heaven help those animals with squinty eyes, creatures with more than four legs or those with no legs at all.

The good guys of the 80's have bunnies, koala bars, pandas or horses. Compare their social stature with that of centipedes, spiders and snakes.

Even in the enlightened 1980's, one can't have too many legs - one can't scurry too fast. And the message seems to be, "Keep your brown eyes wide open if you want to stay out of trouble."

Let's be honest - if fawns had eight legs and crawled around under rocks, there'd be a bounty on them.

An affirmative action program is certainly needed for bats - simply, because they have a bad name.

Seals, on the other hand, make off with more fish than a fleet of Russian trawlers. Then, during off hours, they lie on rocks in the sun like overdone sausages, bating their big brown eyes at boatloads of tourists and looking excruciatingly cute.

Meanwhile, their brother bats toil endlessly through the night, ridding the world of pesky insects.

This truth has yet to find an articulate sponsor in the 1980's. But, with a bit of favorable press, the decade could easily end with giftshops stocking books and statuettes of Andre The Bat.

Frankly speaking

One-room schoolhouse is boarded up, falling down

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"It's a shame." That is how one former student of the old West School described the present condition of that building, which many people refer to as the 'little red school house' on Shawsheen Avenue in Wilmington. Now covered with sheets of plywood over most of its edifice, the building which was once a first and second grade classroom for public school students has been allowed to deteriorate into little more than an eyesore. And what a shame indeed.

Jackie Shemkus Fitzgerald found herself laughing with joy as she recalled her old school days with the Town Crier. Having grown up on Kelly's Hill, Jackie attended her first and second years of elementary school at the little building which was located on Mrs. Eames' farm. Mrs. Eames was the teacher, and as Jackie recalled her childhood impressions she said that the teacher was "very strict and very old."

Mrs. Eames' classroom back in 1950 would hardly resemble what we would find at the Shawsheen Elementary or any other modern facility. When Jackie began her school day, she entered through one of the two front doors which are still to be seen today. The left was for the boys, and the right for the girls. Each had separate coat rooms, which consisted of little brass hooks that were low enough for a first or second grader to reach.

Leaving the coat room, the students took their seats in the three rows of desks for first graders, and two for the second graders. These same desks came complete with inkwells, which is easy enough for Jackie to recall as her pigtail often found its way there; with a little assistance from classmate Donald Hubbard. Not to be out done by Donald, Jackie was caught behind the school one day kissing Dennis Crispo. Like Donald Hubbard, she was a "little hellion".

Mrs. Eames was definitely a traditional school teacher, fitting in well with the quaint surroundings of the little school house. Students began each day with the pledge of allegiance, and the Our Father. Heat came from a little stove, and Jackie Shemkus recalls how she had to dress so as to keep warm. "I remember going to school with leggings, because there was no such thing as girls going to school with pants on. We wore dresses with leggings underneath."

As the school day progressed, the children received only the basics from Mrs. Eames, "A,B,C's, reading, writing, and arithmetic", said Jackie, "along with a few verses of

Old red

The sadly neglected West School sits by the side of the road, paint peeling and windows boarded.

School Day, School Day". And if a student was concentrating on something other than studies, "Mrs. Eames would lock kids in the closet for punishment."

And for lunch time, a big metal bucket of steaming soup was brought to the little school house, with each student given a big, ladlefull in their thick, ceramic bowls. The cost for this and milk was fifteen cents per week.

For people like Jackie Shemkus Fitzgerald, its easy enough to see the dismay they would have when they take a glance at the present condition of the West School. But even for those who have never set foot in the building, its condition has to be just as upsetting.

Dorothy Lafionatis is chairman of the historic commission, and would like to have her organization eventually take control of the West School and breathe some life back into it. According to Dorothy, there are grants available for such work from the Massachusetts Historical Commission, providing that the local government pledge matching funds. And long time committee member Foster Balser has been trying for a number of years to have the school refurbished. The West is one of four remaining single room school houses still standing in the community.

Presently used for storage by the town, the old West School, which we fondly call the 'little red school house', is a stark reminder that Wilmington desperately needs a comprehensive plan to maintain all of its public buildings; especially those that are as rich in history as this one.

It is one of four one-room schoolhouses still standing in town, three of which are still under town ownership. The old South School on Chestnut Street has recently been painted, but is in sad condition. The old Center School, later the public library and now the Fourth of July Headquarters, is fortunately being well cared for by the Fourth of July Committee. The former East School, at the corner of Woburn and Federal streets, is now a private home.

It really is quite a shame to see the quaint, one-room West School covered with more plywood than red paint.

School days

This photo of the West School was taken shortly after the turn of the century. Note the cupola, since removed.

Community television group plans studio

Wilmington Community Television, Inc. (WCTV) is the legally incorporated public access corporation for cable television, in Wilmington. There is a board of directors headed by president Ed Rideout of Truman Road. WCTV is to develop and promote cultural, literary, charitable, community sports and public affairs programming over public access channels in Wilmington. All Wilmington residents and organizations based in Wilmington are eligible for WCTV membership.

The Wilmington selectmen, in negotiations for renewal of the town's cable license, in February 1986 included a provision which made the WCTV possible. The selectmen also negotiated:

Five percent of the Greater Boston's annual revenues, from the operation of the Wilmington cable tv, less applicable local and state franchise fees accrue to the town, for the operation of the non-profit access corporation.

One hundred thousand dollars was given, in equipment and facilities grants, and a total of $60,000 will be paid in $20,000 installments for the 10 year license. The $20,000 payments will occur in four, six and eight years.

The funds, from the five percent and from the grants are to be used to build, maintain and operate a production TV studio, and to hire a staff to facilitate the overall access corporation. The funds are the use of all WCTV members.

The board of directors for WCTV are currently planning the production studio. The board was originally appointed by the Wilmington selectmen, with recommendation from a wide variety of community organizations. WCTV plans to offer classes in all aspects of TV program production, camera operation, editing, lighting and direction. WCTV members who become certified in the proper use of the equipment and studio will be eligible to use the studio, sign out equipment and to produce their own local cable tv show.

The WCTV group is not a part of the Boston Cable TV organization. At the present time it is engaged in talks with the Wilmington Permanent Building Committee, and with the high school, regarding a location for the studio it is to use.

PAST test at WHS Oct. 17

This fall the nearly 1.5 million students across the United States who take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will have a special opportunity to familiarize themselves with the testing format also used on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

On the PSAT/NMSQT, students

Arts Center update

The Wilmington Council for the Arts is continuing its efforts to open the Arts Center regularly for classes, programs, demonstrations and exhibits.

Bus trips to various museums, performances and exhibits will also be sponsored. One such trip was scheduled to the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum.

Monies granted from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery are now being used to paint the inside of the old town hall so that displays of art may be shown to their best advantage. Tables and chairs have been purchased for classes and programs. Future plans include a sound system and stage. It has been a slow process but classes should be starting soon.

An open house is planned for late October to which all are welcome to view the strides being made by the all volunteer group comprising the council.

Officers elected for the year were: Chairman Daniel Ballou, Sr., Vice Chairman Edith Michelson, recording secretary Evelyn Choate, treasurer Annette Campbell, corresponding secretary/publicity Liz White.

Other members of the council include Janet and Larry Brewer, Charles Corsaro, Dora Hirtle, Frances Keough, Mary Masse, Charlotte McCain and advisor Adele Passmore. Newly appointed members are Anne Buzzell, Marge Elia and Tina Prentiss.

Regular meetings of the Arts Council are held the second Thursday of each month at the Arts center (former town hall) beginning at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested in becoming a member may attend the meetings and apply at the town hall.

taking the test at Wilmington High School on October 17 at 8:30 a.m. can "preview" the exam process for the SAT - the prerequisite for many college-bound students, said Roger F. Breakey of the school guidance staff. The test is strongly recommended for college-bound juniors.

Since 1959, about 30,000,000 high school students have taken the test, which measures verbal and mathematical abilities.

This year, the PSAT/NMSQT will be offered Saturday, Oct. 17.

Through the PSAT/NMSQT students are selected for the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Program, which enables talented students to compete for scholarships, and Hispanic students are considered the National Hispanic Scholar Awards Program, funded through a $2.1 million grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

In addition, students can use the test as a guide to see how they ranked nationally among other students.

As preparation for the 100-minute, two-part test, students may receive a "Student Bulletin" containing a complete sample test with an answer key and scoring instruction from the guidance office.

After taking the actual test, students will receive a booklet, "About Your PSAT/NMSQT Scores" a descriptive explanation of test results. Students will also be able to compare their individual answers with the correct answers by consulting the "Report of Student Answers" another valuable guide. Actual test booklets will also be made available to allow students to spot mistakes and work out answers correctly.

The college board provides additional services for counselors and school personnel to better understand and interpret PSAT/NMSQT scores to students and parents. These services include summaries of students' answers, profiles of academic characteristics and career interests of students who have taken the test, and a publication for inclusion in the regular guidance program.

Harold Carbo

Harold D. Carbo, 88, a resident of Tewksbury, died Monday, October 12, 1987, at St. John's Hospital.

Mr. Carbo was born in Vermont, and was a resident of Cambridge before moving to Tewksbury.

Before he retired, he was a chauffeur for the city of Cambridge. He was a U.S. Navy veteran of World War I.

The widower of Mary (Hennessey) Carbo, he was the father of Mary Lander of Waltham, Fran O'Keefe of Cambridge and Jean Green of Tewksbury. He is also survived by 11 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the Daniel O'Brien Funeral Home, Cambridge on Wednesday. Burial followed in Tewksbury Cemetery.

Percival Rice

Percival Cole Rice of Melbourne, Florida died suddenly Tuesday, August 18, 1987.

Born in Wilmington 73 years ago, he was the son of the late Winfred and Alice Cole Rice.

Mr. Rice was a retired water plant operator with the city of Melbourne, where he had lived for 31 years.

He is survived by two brothers, Norman of Wilmington and Herman of Seattle, Washington and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial services were held at the Melbourne Chapel of the South Brevard Funeral Home with burial at sea.

Lucy Howard

Lucy M. Howard of 3 Sprucewood Rd., Wilmington died Sunday, October 11, 1987, at Lahey Clinic Medical Center, Burlington, following a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Howard, 60 years of age, was born in Chelsea, the daughter of the late Angela (DiFiore) and the late Anthony Russo. She spent her youth in Medford and was a resident of Wilmington for over 40 years.

She was a veteran of the Korean Conflict having served in the Waves, U.S. Navy, and prior to her illness was employed at DRC, Wilmington for over 10 years. She was a member of the Wilmington Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Howard is survived by her daughter, Julia M. Howard, of Wilmington; her brothers, Felix A. Russo of Wilmington and Joseph A. Russo of Hamilton, Ohio and was the sister of the late Anna Crowe.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home Wednesday followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church, Wilmington, celebrated by the Rev. Charles J. Hughes. Interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Mildred Neilson

Mildred E. (Buck) Neilson, a native of Wilmington died October 7, 1987 in Newton following a brief illness.

Born in Wilmington 97 years ago, Mrs. Neilson was the widow of Edward M. Neilson and the mother of Mrs. Margaret N. Damon of Tamworth, N.H., Norman E. (Steve) Neilson of Westwood and Richard B. Neilson of Reading. She was the sister of Edwin H. Buck of Webster, N.H. and Heloise Johnson of Winchester. Nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Neilson was past president of the Wilmington Women's Club, a life member of Acacia Chapter O.E.S., a longtime member of the Carter Lecture Committee, and a member and lifelong worker and deaconess of the Congregational Church in Wilmington. She was also a member of the L.B.S. of the Congregational Church. Mrs. Neilson was a graduate of Framingham Teachers' College and taught school in E. Longmeadow and Tyngsboro for several years.

Funeral services for Mrs. Neilson were held at the Wilmington Congregational Church on Saturday, October 10 with the Rev. Tom Dean officiating. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

In lieu of flowers contributions in her memory may be made to the Wilmington Congregational Church or the charity of one's choice. Arrangements were by the Nichols Funeral Home, Wilmington.

Mildred Neilson, town official for 61 years

Mildred (Buck) Neilson, who died last week seems to have been the longest lived Buck in the town of Wilmington. She was over 97 years old.

Mildred was a direct descendant of William and Roger Buck, who settled in what is now Wilmington in the 1660s. Their home still stands, on Wildwood Street, the Benjamin Buck house.

She was the daughter of Steve and Cecilia Buck, who lived at what is now 36 Middlesex Avenue. She and her husband-to-be graduated in the Class of 1908, after which she attended Normal School (now Framingham State College), and became a teacher for two years.

Mildred served on the Sarah D. J. Carter Lecture Committee for a total of 61 years. When she retired from that committee four years ago, she was honored as being the town's oldest official.

Her husband Eddie was one of the more prominent men in the wholesale food business in New England. He became president of the Webster Thomas Co., which produced Matchless Brand foods. The couple built a home on Glen Road, on a part of the farm of Christian "Pop" Neilson. The land was about five acres in area, being a part of the old Henry Harnden farm. Their house was sold three years ago.

The Neilson farmhouse, which was a well known summer boarding house in the early 1900's, dated from about 1790. Henry Harnden built the barn back before the Civil War.

Mildred's mother-in-law, Ma (Stina) Neilson ran the boarding house for many years. It was a popular summer place, often with more than 60 people on hand for Sunday dinner.

After Ma retired, Mildred and her sister-in-law Dorothea Carter took over the operation. They ran it for about two years.

In the domestic scene Mildred had her experiences with the adventures of her children in the old Harnden barn.

That barn, as anyone who visits the Wilmington Town Hall today realizes, has a fine cupola, one that is almost inaccessible to small children. It also has some heavy timbers stretching across the barn, at a height of about 30 or more feet above the floor.

There were haylofts, in which Pop Neilson stored the hay he cut each summer to feed the cattle in the winter. Those haylofts made wonderful "jumping places" for neighborhood children. Pop was not in favor of such games because he felt the children trampled and otherwise ruined the hay, and the cattle would not eat as they should.

Those beams, and the cupola were challenges to many of the children. They would look over the possible routes to the top in the same manner as do modern explorers with Mount Everest.

Peggy Neilson (now Damon) seems to have been the first to get up to the cupola. At least, it can be said, this writer never heard of anyone doing it before she did. Peggy, it should be said, is now a grandmother, living in Tamworth, New Hampshire.

It was one day in the early 1920s that Peggy Neilson succeeded in climbing into the cupola, at Pop's barn. Naturally she felt she had quite an achievement, and she called to anyone who happened to be in the area. "Hey, look at me!"

One who came by was her mother, Mildred.

Mildred very calmly made her way into the barn, and very calmly suggested to Peggy that she should climb down. There was nothing of excitement in her demeanor.

Peggy succeeded in getting down, just as she had succeeded in getting up. She was very calmly, but very firmly instructed, that she should never again try to climb to that cupola.

Her younger brother, Dickie (Richard) went through a similar adventure.

A few years later he too had discovered how to climb up to one of the high beams, and he started to walk across, a distance of about 40 feet. The walking was on a beam that was six, or at the most eight inches wide.

Mildred came into the barn when Dickie was about half way across. Just as quietly as with Peggy, she told Dickie to finish the trip, and then she told him to climb down.

Dickie too was very firmly instructed that he should never again try to climb up to that beam.

Grade five in 1901

Mildred Buck and Eddie Neilson were in the same fifth grade class in 1901. Years later, they were married. The picture was taken at the building which was then Wilmington High School, later called the Center School. Mildred is the second girl from left, in the top row, and Eddie is the second boy from left, in the second row from the top.

Eames St. bridge topic at C of C meeting

The care of the Eames Street bridge should be improved. So members of the Chamber of Commerce have agreed, in a meeting October 13.

The bridge is closed for the third time in three years due to railroad accidents.

The problem seems to be too many fingers in the pot. The MBTA owns the bridge, and the Boston & Maine owns the track. Employment, or possibly labor difficulties are also a part of the problem, it seems.

One member observed that there are no longer any cabooses, for freight trains. That has reduced the crew by two persons, and it is now up to the engineer to judge whether or not a given car will go under the bridge. Ray Forest ended the discussion with a remark that the bridges do not go up and down, but the loads on the freight cars seem to.

The Chamber directors feel that the people of Wilmington are being very poorly served.

Promotions for two Wilmington engineers

Weston and Sampson Engineers, Inc., Wakefield, has announced recent promotions for Peter Smith of Aldrich Road, and Henry R. Gilhooly of Lake Street, both of Wilmington.

Peter M. Smith

Peter M. Smith, P.E., has been promoted to the position of Vice President.

With 14 year's experience at Weston & Sampson, Mr. Smith is responsible for the management of wastewater and storm drainage projects for both municipal and industrial clients. His extensive experience includes upgrading existing industrial waste collection system and treatment works, resident inspection of water and sewer construction installations, sewer system evaluation surveys and rehabilitation design and construction of landfill operations and closure plans.

Mr. Smith and his wife, Dianne, have two children and live on Aldrich Road, in Wilmington.

Henry R. Gilhooly

Henry R. Gilhooly, with over 23 year's experience in the presentation and coordination of civil, water and sewer pipeline design contract documents, has been promoted to the position of Associate.

Having joined Weston & Sampson in 1985, as chief draftsman, Mr. Gilhooly's project experience includes preparation of mapping of water and sewer for Boston Water and Sewer Commission's Downtown Study, sewer projects for Chelmsford, Nantucket, Bellingham, Mass., and Coventry, R.I., and water projects for Quincy and Stoughton, Mass.

Mr. Gilhooly and his wife, Janet, have two children and live on Lake Street, in Wilmington.

American Computer Exchange

American Computer Exchange, Inc. has opened a regional office at 155 West Street, Wilmington.

This eight year old company is an IBM broker dealer. They are a strong regional company capable of buying, selling and leasing both new and used IBM equipment ranging from PC's to 3090's.

Their headquarters is in Ridgefield, Ct. with offices in White Plains, Syracuse and now in the Boston area. Their customer base includes Aetna, Travelers, Connecticut, Mutual, Phoenix Mutual, John Hancock, Commercial Union, Computervision, Citibank and Union Carbide as well as many smaller users.

Their new facility is located at Executive Exchange Complex, Inc., a shared tenant service located at 155 West St. in Wilmington. Any further information requests can be directed to Michael Coate, regional marketing director at 270-3701.

Women in Business luncheon

The Women in Business Division of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will hold a luncheon meeting Tuesday, Oct. 20, beginning at noon at the Fourth of July Headquarters on Middlesex Avenue, opposite Wilmington common.

The topic of this month's meeting will be "No Money Down - Fact or Fiction" and will be presented by real estate broker Carol Marrano and banker Mary Marengi.

Ms. Marrano is president of the Eastern Middlesex Realty Board and owns her own real estate offices in Stoneham and Arlington. Ms. Marengi, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, is the regional manager of the lending division of the Boston Five cents Savings Bank. It promises to be an interesting and informative presentation.

Meetings of the Women's Division also offer an opportunity for members to network, with all attending given the opportunity to introduce themselves and describe their business and professional needs. Job opportunities, service and product information and other topics will also be shared.

Cost of the luncheon meeting is $8 for members and $10 for non-members. Reservations are required by Friday, Oct. 16 and may be made by calling Chairperson Arlene Burpee at AAJ Travel, 657-7400 or the Chamber of Commerce at 657-7211.

Zeller and Grossman join Carlson R. E.

Dawnmarie Zeller and Mark Grossman, both of Billerica have joined Carlson Real Estate located at 1866 Main Street, Tewksbury, as residential sales associates.

Dawnmarie Zeller holds a business degree from Middlesex Community College. For the last three years, she was employed as a MRO buyer for a biotechnology research and development firm. Married, with one child.

Mark Grossman was formerly in health club management which entails sales management, recruiting and training staff on equipment, payroll and accounts receivable.

Carlson Real Estate in Tewksbury is part of a network of 26 residential sales offices serving communities throughout Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

The "Freedom from Smoking"

The 20-day American Lung Association's self-help stop smoking plan will be offered at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington beginning on Tuesday, October 20, 27, November 3, 10 and 17, from 7-8:30 p.m.

The "Freedom from Smoking" program is conducted in a supportive and small group environment and is led by a community health educator who holds a bachelor's degree in health education and is a trained stop smoking facilitator by the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society.

The course runs for five weeks and is scheduled to conclude on Tuesday, November 17. All participants receive a workbook and handbook which provide a variety of helpful exercises to assist participants in quitting smoking and to remaining a non-smoker. Films will be shown and brochures and pamphlets on smoking will be available.

Pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, x 567. The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate/Symmes Health Services.

Our Lady of Nazareth 40th anniversary

Our Lady of Nazareth Academy will be celebrating its 40th year anniversary on Thursday, October 15, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. in Emiliana Center 14 Winship Drive Wakefield. Liturgy will be celebrated by Reverend Thomas Kenny followed by a reception and dinner buffet.

The Liturgy will include a slide show of the highlights of the academy's 40 years, a dance performance by the Credo Liturgical dancers and music selections from the OLN concert Choir members and Alumnae. The music is performed under the direction of Dr. Patricia Capone Tamagini, OLN class of 1965.

Students, faculty, friends, neighbors and alumnae are invited to attend. For ticket information call 245-8727.

Murder Mystery Night at Collins Center

A nervous night of mystery and adventure will await theatre goers at the Murder Mystery Night at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawsheen Rd., Andover on Saturday, October 24, at 7 p.m.

Staged by a professional murder mystery company, the performance will begin with a reception where professional actors will mingle incognito with the audience. The night will include high drama, murderous mayhem, exciting chase scenes, and many other thrills for

Shawsheen Tech lists homecoming activities

Alumni of Shawsheen Tech are invited to the second annual Homecoming Day at the school Saturday, October 24.

A full day of activities begins with a pancake breakfast at 9:30 a.m., followed by the high scoring RAMS soccer team meeting Haverhill High School at 10:30.

Main event of the afternoon will be the football game with the Shawsheen RAMS working to derail the Graer Lowell Gryphons Super Bowl express. Kickoff is scheduled for 1:30.

Alumni are urged to stay for final countdown, since plans are being made for an alumni gathering after the game.

For tickets, or more information, alumni are urged to call John Bowen, dean of students or John Judge, academic coordinator at the school, 667-2111.

Fall foliage car rally

Southern New Hampshire will be the setting for a fall foliage car rally on Saturday afternoon, to benefit the New England Handicapped Sportsmen's Association.

Participants will be given a set of clues for directions, with observation questions. Answers to the questions are the primary scoring factor, rather than speed.

The rally begins at noon on Sat., Oct. 17 at the parking lot for Le Bifteque and Koala Inn, off Route 93 in Andover (Exit 45).

The directions will lead you to a party at a restaurant south of Manchester, N.H. where a buffet will be served and prizes awarded.

The cost of the rally is $10 per person. Each car should have a minimum of two people.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the New England Handicapped Sportsmen's Association, which offers a free ski instruction and recreational opportunities for handicapped persons.

amateur and serious sleuths.

A grand prize will be awarded to the member of the audience who collects all the clues and solves the mystery.

Tickets are $35 for the entire evening (including the reception), are on sale now and may be purchased at the Collins Center Box office and all Ticketron locations. To charge tickets, call Teletron at 1-800-382-8080. Group discounts are available. For details call 470-1905.

St. William's Church

St. William's Church will be holding a reflection of the Synod Process, on Wednesday, October 28.

What is a Synod?

The word comes from two Greek words: syn - together; hodos - on the road.

The early church had a vision of itself as a pilgrim people on the road back to the father. Synods were times of stopping on that journey to take stock, that is, to evaluate their progress on the journey and to set direction for the future.

The most recent Synod of the Universal Church was Vatican Council II. What makes this Synod different from other Synods?

All other Synods were purely clerical affairs. All were bishops or priests. The new Code of Canon Law adds to the membership of Synods, representatives from the laity.

Why a Synod at this time?

We have a new archbishop. It has been 20 years since the close of Vatican II - time to take stock of our progress.

The reflection session provides everyone an opportunity to critique the reports. It is the Cardinal's wish that the recommendations not simply be those of a select group. He wants them tested against the lived experiences of the people of the Archdiocese.

The reflection session at St. William's will be: Wednesday, October 28, lower church. (If you plan to attend this session, please call the rectory at 851-7331 to register so we may furnish you with the reports to read.)

The three topics which will be discussed are: youth, family, culture.

Bigger education Expo planned

Parents hunting for the perfect holiday gift for their children will find a shopper's delight at the second Children's Educational Expo, slated for Tuesday, Nov. 17 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Reading Memorial High School. More than 20 companies from greater Boston will be there offering high quality toys, games, books, computer products, art supplies, and educational materials for toddlers to teenagers.

The expo is being sponsored by the Reading Town Wide Parent Teachers' Organization council, which works to create a community climate favorable to the interests of child welfare.

Expo coordinator Anne O'Neill says the Expo was moved to the Reading High School this year because the enormous success of last year attracted many more companies to the event.

"Anyone who attended last year's Expo can attest to the quality of the merchandise available," says O'Neill. "It is simply a terrific opportunity to enjoy an evening of holiday shopping and cheer with your friends and neighbors."

The exhibitors include such notable out-of-town companies as Discovery Toys of Andover, Book Ends of Winchester, The Learning Tree of Needham, and The Shepherd and the Lamb of Arlington. Local Reading establishments such as Video Kingdom, Soccer Doctor, and Marf-O-Gram Embroidering will also be on hand.

"Last year the Joshua Eaton PTO brought the Children's Educational Expo to Reading to help parents who were looking for those extra special gift ideas that were both fun and educational," says newly elected Eaton PTO President Nancy Meehan. "The Expo provided a one stop marketplace for some of the area's best educational and recreational products. We were very pleased with the response we received and so this year the Expo has been expanded town wide."

Public admission to the Expo is $1, with proceeds going to the Town Wide PTO Council.

"If you have children or grandchildren, or if a child is on your Christmas list, you will not want to miss this event," instructs O'Neill. "There will be something there for everyone."

Wilmington school news

North Intermediate

Eight grade students in Joy Boucher's and Michael Tammara's social studies classes will journey to the Berkeley Center for the Arts on November 2 to attend a play about presidents of the United States.

Upcoming events at the North: Oct 19-23 - Iowa testing for eighth graders.

Oct. 20 - An assembly on alcohol and drug abuse. A professional athlete will be the guest speaker.

Sixth graders took their basic skills test the week of October 6-9. PAC members on Oct. 13 went over student activities and the formation of a School Improvement Council. Norma Rushton, R.N., head nurse of Wilmington schools, was guest speaker.

Wilmington High

Congratulations to the new officers of the Freshman Class. Elections were held last week. The following students will serve in various roles:

President, Allison Curtin; Vice-President, Nicole Bouchie; Treasurer, Kacy Soderquist; Secretary, Doug Poland; Student Council Reps., Stacey Kane, Susan Sweet.

Note: This is your column. If you have any school news of interest, please bring it to the Town Crier office Mondays or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Tax alarm?

A malfunction set off the fire alarm system at the Wilmington Town Hall Tuesday night during the selectmen's meeting. The alarm went off at 9 p.m., just after the tax rates had been voted. Two fire engines and the ladder truck responded to the alarm, after which Deputy Chief Walter Sowyrda and Town Manager Buzz Stapezynski shut off the alarm zone responsible for the malfunction.

board in preparing a town center feasibility study. Tentative plans call for a close look at such things as the parameters of a new town center, traffic routes in and around the center area, bridge safety issues, impact on center businesses, and aesthetics and urban design.

A total $35,000 has been allotted for the consultation service, which will cover a four to six month timeframe. According to a preliminary work plan outlined by WFA, the firm will review existing and new information, look at an alternative bridge concept design, define "quality of life" issues for town center, and narrow down options for town center to one both the redevelopment authority and the firm can recommend.

Halloween party

Those who have not signed up for the October 30 Halloween party at the Hilton in Lowell are advised that there are still a few openings. Those not signed up by the end of the week will have to be placed on a waiting list.

Blood pressure, diabetes check

Nurse Abbie will be at the Center Thursday starting at 1:30 p.m. to check blood pressures and give diabetes tests. Please pick up a number at the office after entering the Center. If it has been some time since your last diabetes test, it would be wise to take it again. Remember diabetes does not give any warning signs until sugar level in blood has climbed to a dangerous level. At this point it may be difficult to bring it under control. To alleviate this worry, sugar level should be checked several times a year. The test is given at the Center every third Thursday of the month.

Flu-pneumonia Sunday

Don't forget the flu and pneumonia immunization clinic at the Town Hall Sunday, Oct. 18 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Don't take the pneumonia shot if you have had it before. Once immunized against pneumonia you are protected.

Many activities

Now that the summer months have passed and seniors may be looking for something to keep them busy through the cold days of winter, they are urged to join others at the Center. Activities include exercise class on Monday and Wednesday mornings, 10-11; ceramics class on Tuesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; arts and crafts projects in the craft room Tuesdays and Thursdays; dancing Thursdays afternoons starting at 1; bridge Thursday afternoon, 1:30 in the craft room; bingo Fridays beginning at 1; whist party the second and fourth Mondays starting at 1 p.m. Prizes are given to winners at bingo and whist.

Wilmington senior topics

Those who like to walk, bowl, or swim, may take part in the swimming Thursday mornings, bowling at Candlepin Lanes in North Reading Wednesdays at 1:30 p.m. Swimming is at Shawsheen Tech Wednesdays from 10 to 11 a.m.

Fuel applications

Those who have not had their fuel application made out at the Center and think they may qualify, are urged to call the center at 657-7595. To qualify, a household of one can have no more than $9,625; and for a household of two or more, no more than $12,950. That includes Social Security, pensions, working, or interest. Remember, when you arrive for your appointment, have with you proof of income. Shutins may make arrangements for home visits.

Lonely? Call 657-7595

Are you or do you know someone who is homebound, lonely or ill?

We can have a telephone call or visit made to you on your request weekly. The telephone calls are made by volunteers in the Telephone Reassurance Program and the visit will be by our respite care services. The service is free. All you have to do is call the center and tell us which of the services would make you feel better.

Human relations

Human Relations is considered a college course for students entering fields where they will be dealing with the feelings and emotions of the human being. As senior citizens many of us have lived long enough to teach the course. We have learned to speak to people, as we know how nice it is to be greeted with a pleasant word, to smile, as it feels so much better than scowling, calling a person by his or her first name, is music to their ears.

We know how it feels to be accepted in a friendly manner. We also know there is something good in everyone, if we try to find it. We have learned how to give a complaint and how easily a person can be hurt by criticism. We know what counts most in life is not what is done for us but what we do for others that makes us feel good. We certainly have plenty of opportunity at the Center to prove we could teach a class in Human Relations.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending October 13, Wilmington police officers responded to nine accidents, one fire, 31 alarms, settled six disturbances, made 13 arrests and one protective custody detention.

Medical assistance was given four times, eight larcenies (including hub caps, money, radio, wheel, tape deck, canoe) were investigated along with 10 incidents of suspicious activity, six trailbike complaints and five complaints involving traffic.

Two assault and batteries were recorded along with a break and entry. Seven domestic problems were quieted, a firearms complaint was logged, one person was reported missing, four threat complaints were taken and four incidents of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Early Wednesday morning Officer Bob Richter arrested Paul Kyer, 21 of Mill Street, Burlington after a traffic stop. Kyer was charged with operating a motor vehicle after his license had been suspended and violating the open container law (alcohol).

Also early Wednesday, Officer Paul Chalifour arrested James P. Silver, 22, 157 Shawsheen Ave. on the basis of two default warrants, one from Lowell and one from Wilmington. He was also charged with receiving stolen property, to wit a license plate belonging to a Wilmington resident.

At 3 a.m. Wednesday, Richard Pellerin, 28, 210 Main St., was arrested by Officer Jim White after a traffic stop on Main Street. Pellerin was charged with operating a motor vehicle after his license was suspended.

Also Wednesday morning, Paul Condon, 21 of 55 Bearhill Rd., Reading was arrested by Sgt. Duffy and Officer King after a radar traffic stop. Condon was charged with operating after suspension of his license.

Officer Steve Mauriello arrested Paul Cantwell, 19 of One Main Street, Wednesday night and charged him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence and having defective equipment.

Early Thursday officers White and Miller arrested two North Reading men on liquor violations. Richard Caruro, 17 of Park Street, No. Reading was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence and underage possession of alcohol.

Richard Taylor, 20 of Linwood Avenue was also charged with underage possession of alcohol.

James Hembree, 24 of Salem Street, Wilmington was arrested at 2 a.m. Friday by Officer Jon Shepard. The officer charged Hembree with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and discovered a default warrant issued for him by the Andover Police Department.

Mark MacPherson, 29 of South Street, Pepperell was arrested by Officer Tom Miller around 3 a.m. Saturday and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence and having defective equipment.

A second arrest Saturday morning was made by Officer Chalifour, Todd Nemeth, 21 of Ward Street, Revere was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a Mass. license, having defective equipment and two warrants against him issued by the Lowell Police Department.

Two men were arrested Saturday night by the special enforcement team. Paul DeFilippo, 27 of Marcia Road, Wilmington and John P. Giroux, 24 of Aldrich Road were charged with possession of marijuana, a class D controlled substance.

Captain John Trull, Minuteman

Capt. John Trull, Captain of the Tewksbury Minutemen, received a message during the night of April 18-19, 1775. It is probable that he was told by a man on horseback that the British were marching.

Owner of about 200 acres in North Tewksbury, he lived in a farmhouse on what is today called River Road Hill. There was a field nearby, a pasture, in which the Minutemen had drilled. That farmhouse burned, about 1912, but about 135 acres of the farm are today known as the Trull Golf Course.

The farmhouse overlooked the Merrimack River. Across the river was the town of Dracut, and the home of Captain (later General) Varnum, of the Dracut Minutemen.

Capt. Trull knew what to do. It is to be believed he already had his orders, arranged by the Massachusetts Committee on Safety. Sam Adams was one of the organizers, and the people of the colony were ready for a march by the British to such a place as had military stores, such as Concord.

Trull, quite obviously in accordance with previous orders, took his gun outside and fired three shots. Across the river those shots were heard by Capt. Varnum, and he, too, knew what to do.

The individual Minutemen captains had their orders. Those of Trull and Varnum were probably the same as the captains of Reading, Wilmington and Billerica - march to Bedford where Capt. Ebenezer Bridge of Billerica will take command and give orders.

Remember the Midnight Ride of Paul Revere?

It wasn't the only thing that happened that night. As the British troops marched toward Lexington there were officers who heard guns being fired, and church bells being rung. The countryside was being alarmed.

And Paul Revere was not the only man who rode.

Revere got his horse that night from a man named Richard Devens. Devens was chairman of the Charlestown Committee on Safety.

Devens quite probably furnished horses to other riders, that same night. Some one must have ridden to Essex County towns. Minutemen of Andover marched across Tewksbury in the early hours of the morning, and Minutemen of Danvers joined in the fighting as the British retreated, somewhere in the modern town of Arlington.

Just look at the Town Seal of Tewksbury.

A rider on horseback is shown near the center of Tewksbury and the church which marked that center. The ancient tradition is that he is the person who warned the town that the British were marching.

No one knows who he was. It is possible that it was he who warned Capt. Cadwallader Ford of Wilmington. It is also possible that he rode on to the home of Capt. Trull and then possibly to Chelmsford.

Bruce Morang, distinguished Reading editor, has carefully researched the history of his town on that night. It is he who tells the tale of Dr. Martin Herrick, 28-year-old physician, of Precinct Two, now North Reading.

Dr. Herrick received his information from no less a person than Paul Revere, on that night. He rode on, into Woburn and Stoneham, then to LinnEnd (Lynnfield) and Reading, passing the alarm. The end of his ride was at the Gowing Tavern, from which he rode home, then he joined his company of militia and marched.

And, like others, Capt. John Trull was a man who helped spread the word that the British were out, and then marched to join the fighting. But there is even more, in his case.

It is on record that a New Hampshire company of soldiers was in Cambridge after the fighting on April 19. That company had marched and had run for over 50 miles, to do its part, and did its duty in the siege of Boston, which started that night.

Who sent the word to a company of soldiers over 50 miles away? How did they know it was time to march?

It is impossible to say. No one knows.

John Trull, with his three rifle shots, warned Dracut, a town that borders New Hampshire. Were those rifle shots repeated, across New Hampshire, to warn those New Hampshire men who marched, as well as those from Maine, who later marched?

Trull Mill was one of many in area

Copyright © 1987 by Capt. Larz Neilson

The Trull Mill in North Tewksbury, just down stream from River Road was an ancient manufacturing asset to the farmers and husbandmen of Colonial times. It was still in existence when World War II became a reality, in the United States, and possibly a year or two later.

No one seems to know the date it was started. The chances are fairly good that it was in operation before 1700, but there is no available proof.

The art of milling was brought to the Massachusetts Bay colony by the early Pilgrims and Puritans. Any place where there was a possible waterfall was utilized for its power. There was, in those days, no other source of power, other than treadmills, possibly powered by servants or horses.

It will be remembered by some that the Saugus Iron Mill dates back to about 1650. It is quite possible that the mills on the Charles River, and at other places, date back to the same time or earlier.

In Wilmington the Nod Mill, just southerly of Salem Street was in operation by 1695, being owned by a member of the Sewell family. A mill on Glen Road, known later as the Harnden Mill, was in operation by 1705 and possibly earlier, being owned by a member of the Thompson family.

The Pearson Mill, on Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington, was in operation by 1705. Mill stones from that mill can be found on property nearby, privately owned of course.

The writer has never dated the Kendall Mill in Tewksbury, on the banks of Strongwater Brook, but that probably dates back to about 1700. And so, it can be presumed, was what was known as the Trull Mill.

Most of those mills had both a grist mill and a saw mill.

Grist mills ground grain. Saw mills cut lumber.

In grist mills two ponderous stones, one above the other, were used with one stone being turned by the power of the water.

One such mill stone may be seen, as part of a wall on North Street in Tewksbury. It is near the old Battles house. As previously stated there is a mill stone near the site of the old Pearson Mill, Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington.

One such mill stone was used to anchor the flagpole on Wilmington Common back about World War I days. It may be still so used, but if so is now below ground.

The mill stones were mostly used in the fall and early winter, after the harvest of the summer grain. In other times the mills which were used were saw mills, generally up

The Trull Mill in 1894. Located downstream from River Road, it is now almost surrounded by the golf course, of which it is not a part. The larger part of the building housed the sawmill, and the smaller part housed the gristmill, each of which was powered by the same waterwheel. Note how the larger part is parallel to the banks of the brook, so that logs to be cut could be rolled in.

other times the mills which were used were saw mills, generally up to the 15th of April.

On the 15th of April, if fields not owned by the miller were being flooded he was forced to release the water by an ancient colonial law. Such was probably the case at Nod Mill in Wilmington, but most certainly was not the case at Trull Mill.

The mill pond, upstream from River Street, is in a declivity which has a hill for its background. No farmer could complain that his fields were being flooded, because there were no fields.

After the grain had been ground the sawmill part of the operation started, say in December or January. Big sawmill blades, generally six or seven feet long, were used to cut the trees into timbers or boards.

There was an ancient remark about the speed of those blades. "Up today, and down tomorrow." This remark can be understood when one considers the size of the pine and other trees being cut.

There is a copy of a deed made out to Captain John Trull, in one of the buildings at the Trull Golf course, in North Tewksbury, dated May 12, 1778. It sells and conveys to John Trull, gentleman, two mills now standing and land, for the sum of 173 pounds six shillings and eight pence, from John Wells, blacksmith. One mill is a sawmill, and the other is a grist mill.

The brook is named "Johnson's Brook." Nearby is land of one John Hardy. Johnson's Brook is today Trull Brook.

The deed was signed before William Stickney, "Just. Pacis," (Justice of the Peace). Stickney, of course, is an ancient Tewksbury and Billerica name. The date of signing was Sept. 11, 1778.

The name of the Register of Deeds is Eber (Ebenezer) Bridge, who, quite probably was the same man who led the Billerica Minutemen, on their march to Concord and afterward was colonel of the Second Middlesex Regiment at Bunker Hill.

From the above one should not assume that John Trull was not living in the neighborhood before that date.

Tewksbury is, of course, a part of the ancient Billerica, and the Trull family were present when that town was first settled. There was a six acre grant in 1658. Many grants were made at that time, and in some instances the family did not accept, but the Trull family had been living nearby, in what is probably now Burlington. There was a later grant of land too, which adds to the probability of that family having been one of the earliest in Billerica.

Samuel Trull, of the fifth generation, born in 1701-02, most certainly lived in Tewksbury, as did his brother John.

And there have been members of that family in Tewksbury ever since.

The sawmill at Old Sturbridge Village has an up-and-down blade of the type used in early New England sawmills. The blade is ready to start cutting some white pine.

Billerica blanks Wildcats, 13-0

Wildcat D's

The Wildcat D team was rained out Sunday, Oct. 4, but encountered Billerica Monday, Oct. 5. They lost in a squeaker, 13-0. The Wildcats had several drives that were stalled due to penalties. Although the D team lost, they put forth an excellent effort showing improvement in the offensive blocking and running game.

Quarterback Mike Giaidano looked sharp completing a pass to wide receiver Jack Warford.

On offense, Lee Trimarchi had several good runs, only to be called back on penalties. Dan Lutz also looked good at the running back slot.

Defensively, Phil Rittucci and Bill Naste were standouts. Head coach Tom Coates and assistants Ray

Ventura and Nino Trimarchi were looking forward to the Wakefield game on Sunday, Oct. 11.

C team

The C team posted its first victory over a tough Lexington squad Wednesday, October 7. Head coach Chris Peabody and assistants coaches Bob Santos, Bob Ducharme, Bill Woods and Mike Gray were pleased with the team's best game yet.

The Wildcat C team posted a 6-0 victory. Running back Mike Alonardo and quarterback Brian Tildsley sparked the offense, with excellent support from offensive linemen Clay Swartz, Jackson Cook and Dave DePasquale.

A stingy Wildcat defense was led by defensive tackle Steve Pryjenski along with Steve O'Neil, Keith Pearlstein, Brian Ashdown and Jay Iannacchino. Rich Maynard was on the scene of two Lexington fumbles.

The coaching staff was pleased with the offensive blocking and very tough defense. A very "up" C Team was scheduled to play Wakefield Sunday.

Streak snapped; Redmen still first

The Tewksbury boys varsity soccer squad had a 23 game undefeated streak in the MVC snapped by their own unproductiveness this past week, but continued to lead the Small School Division in their quest for a fourth straight championship.

Tewksbury varsity

Tewksbury this past week defeated a better than the record shows, Chelmsford squad by a 3-0 count. Two first half goals, one on a header by junior forward Jim Pollard, and the other by senior midfielder Billy Martin, would be all the Redmen would need.

Senior Derek Doherty would score his fifth goal of the season near the end of the game to close out the scoring.

Junior Tom Walsh and seniors Joe Seely and Tim Quinn collected the assists, respectively. Senior sweeper Marc Paglia, along with stopperback Keith Krugh and wingbacks Pat McCaffery and Derek Heartquist played excellent games for the Redmen.

Two days later the Redmen travelled to Lawrence for one of the longest regular season games of the year. Delay and stall tactics by the Lancers never allowed the Redmen offense to get untracked.

Both goals were the result of inattentiveness on the part of the Lawrence defense. Junior Tom Walsh picked off a poor goal kick and deposited the ball into the net 13 minutes into the second half, and senior Ron Perrin followed that play up 11 minutes later by touching a direct kick into the net with no defensive pressure.

Lawrence never penetrated the Redmen penalty box, ending up with no shots on net.

Tewksbury freshmen

The first year Tewksbury boys' freshmen program is off to an excellent 3-0-0 start. Coached by former varsity captains Scott Thornton, the head coach, and Pat Sands, the young Redmen of the future have impressed many with their continuing improvement in every game.

The team of 21 players includes Jason and Jeff Araujo, Frank Balsamo, David Bell, Greg Columbus, Bill Flynn, Ken Fowler, Mike Frasca, Dean Goldworthy, Steven Field, Brian Foster, Ed Henderson, Craig Hogan, Richard Kim, James MacMullin, Richard Proulx, Sal Reitano, Scott Selissen, Karl Sussenberger, Keith Crowley and Steven Sills.

The Redmen opened up their season versus Chelmsford in a game played at the Livingston Street soccer field. In an evenly played game, Frank Balsamo was credited with the only goal of the game at the 15 minute mark of the first half.

Goalkeeper David Bell played extremely well, as did a hustling Richie Proulx.

Tewksbury next hosted an established Wakefield team that has been highly touted over the past years for being the reason

tops

TMHS soccer coach Steve Levine doesn't look pleased during Saturday morning's win over Central Catholic, but overall he should be happy with first place and eight wins thus far.

Soccer
heat

The Redmen soccer squad applied plenty of pressure against Lawrence Central Catholic Saturday.

Wakefield was continuously in State Division I finals and semifinal games.

After a scoreless first half, a dominating Redmen team finally broke the ice, as Steven Field headed in two balls, one from Craig Hogan and one from Mike Frasca.

Greg Columbus made the score 3-0 when he connected on a pass from Craig Hogan. Keith Crowley ended the scoring on a pass from Greg Columbus to cap an all-around good effort on the part of Tewksbury, totally outplaying Wakefield in every aspect of the game.

After finally finding the field in Westford, the Redmen beat the Grey Ghosts and the rain for a 5-1 victory.

Led by Craig Hogan's three goals, and one each by Mike Frasca

Road School on Thursday, Oct. 15 (rain date Thurs., Oct. 22) starting at 7 p.m. and ending at approximately 8:15. This event will be sponsored by Wilmington Rotary, Wilmington Recreation and Wilmington Pop Warner. Prizes will be awarded. Don't forget, since this is a fun event. Boys and girls are welcome.

Horribles parade

The Wilmington Pop Warner Board of directors has reminded all players and cheerleaders that on Saturday, Oct. 31 the horribles parade starts at the police station at 6:45 p.m. and proceeds to the high school tennis courts where marchers will be reviewed for best costume. Wilmington Pop Warner will offer a prize to the ghost or goblin who most closely resembles the president, Len Howard.

Sunday, Oct. 4, Wilmington Pop Warner D, C and B games against Lexington were postponed due to inclement weather. However, head coach Dana Daniell and his A team traveled to Victory Field in Watertown, where they suffered a 27-0 setback. Playing in less than perfect conditions, the A team could not recover from two early fumbles, from which Watertown was able to capitalize and convert into touchdowns.

However, Coach Daniell and his assistants Dominick Rittucci, Richie DeLuca and Ken Howard, Jr. saw improvements in the offensive line play and linebacking. Standouts in Sunday's game were Brian Murray at offensive and defensive ends. Brian was instrumental in sacking Watertown's quarterback on several occasions.

Pat Rooney recovered two fumbles which were caused by some vicious hits inflicted by Wildcat players on their opponents. In addition, Bryant Falzone made several stellar plays defensively.

Wilmington Pop Warner is in a rebuilding and learning year after a three year hiatus. The injured list includes Joe Schifo - sprained ankle and Eric Re, bruised ribs. Eric was able to play on Sunday. The other games have been rescheduled for evenings at the newly lighted Glen Road Field.

and Jason Araujo, the Redmen scored three first half goals to ice the contest. Ed Henderson assisted on Hogan's first goal, while Greg Columbus assisted on Araujo's goal.

Good overall play was credited to Craig Hogan, Mike Frasca, Ken Fowler, Jay MacMullin and David Bell.

On Saturday, the Redmen varsity played a fundamentally sound game versus the Billerica Indians at Billerica, but ended up on the short end of a 1-0 score.

The loss put an end to a 23 game unbeaten streak covering the last two years for the Redmen, and at the same time exposed the scoring drought the Redmen are going through for the second time this season.

The Redmen controlled the action for about 70-75 percent of the game, but a lack of shots produced few scoring opportunities.

Billerica had even fewer scoring chances, but made good 23.37 into the second half to win the game. The goal was the result of poor pursuit on the part of the Tewksbury defense, ruining what turned out to be an excellent defensive effort the rest of the day. Dan Fiore and Chris Stys shared the goalkeeping duties.

Junior varsity

While the varsity has been having a fairly successful season to this point, little attention has been focused on the undefeated junior varsity team.

Coached by newcomer Tim Sloman of England, an industrial arts teacher at the junior high school, the jv's have compiled a 4-0-3 record.

Led by goalkeeper Dave Karlberg, a sophomore, and scoring aces Gary Kidder and Greg Basillio, both sophomores, the Redmen jv's continue the bright outlook for the soccer future.

This past week, Tewksbury received a goal from excellent midfield prospect Pat Romano, another sophomore, on an assist from Kidder to give the Redmen a 1-1 tie with the Chelmsford Lions.

On Thursday, another 1-1 tie resulted when sophomore Jamie Holden scored an unassisted goal against a tough Westford squad.

Against Billerica on Saturday, the jv's handled the Indians, 4-2 as the above mentioned five scorers did their thing.

Gary Kidder scored first from Greg Basillio. Basillio from Kidder gave the Redmen a 2-0 lead. Kidder, again from Basillio, upped the count to 3-0. The Indians then made a run to make the score 3-2, but Jamie Holden, from Pat Romano quelled the comeback to give the Redmen their victory.

During the streak sweepback Robbie Williams has anchored a tough Redmen defense.

Barry Dick stars

Junior offensive tackle Barry Dick of Tewksbury led the offensive line in an impressive attack against Framingham State College to give Nichols College a 30-14 win, their first victory of the season.

Dick, a dean's honor student, is a graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dick of 9 Cleghorn Lane, Tewksbury.

The team travelled to Buzzards Bay October 3 where they face the always tough Mass Maritime Academy. Game time is 1 p.m.

Nichols, a four year independent college with over 1,000 students, is a center for the study and practice of free enterprise capitalism, primarily emphasizing business and public administration.

Located in Dudley in south-central Massachusetts, Nichols fields nine men's and three women's varsity athletic teams which compete in the NCAA Division III.

Get set

The Wilmington volleyball girls get set during Saturday morning's 15-5, 16-14 straight set loss to Tewksbury.

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes. Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused. A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student-athletes.

It takes them step by step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings. The cost is $12.00. Write the National Sports Foundation, Post Office Box 408 Matawan, N.J. 07747-0408.

Rare daylight for Wildcats

Wildcat senior running back Joe Spencer finds some rare daylight and heads upfield in Saturday's lopsided loss to Chelmsford. The defeat dropped the Wilmington state to 1-3-0 on the season.

TMHS cross country

Tough week for Redmen

Despite some outstanding individual efforts by several Tewksbury runners, both the boys and girls cross-country teams lost tough meets to Lowell and Dracut last week. The boys' loss to both of their opponents in the tri-meet dropped their record to one win and four losses. The girls suffered their first loss after three straight victories, and it was heartbreaking because it was so close.

Jennifer Harmon led the girls race almost the entire way, and opened up an even wider lead as she charged to the finish with a new course record: 18:04 for the 2.7 mile layout. Lowell's Carrie Maille took second, followed closely by another TMHS runner who had a strong performance, Joanne McNamara. The bad news came when Lowell placed three girls in the next spots despite an improvement by almost a minute by Chrissy Juskiewicz and a solid race by Rachel Smith.

The 26-31 Lowell victory that resulted was a disappointment to everyone, but all the Tewksbury athletes could take pride in the knowledge that they had given their best shot, and then some.

Jeff Rideout led the Tewksbury boys by cutting 25 seconds off his time and finishing a strong third behind Dave Lamarre of Lowell and Bryan Patenaud of Dracut. A victory over either Lowell or Dracut was not to be however, as each team was able to get three of its' runners ahead of the next man from Tewksbury.

Tim Martin, Ben Nichols, Tom Hooper (who cut 52 seconds off his time) and Jeff Parsons all put forth great efforts, but the final scores were: Lowell 21, TMHS 38, and Dracut 25, TMHS 32.

Bass beware, Rusty has your number

by Bill Conlon

If you enjoy using spinnerbaits for bass fishing, look no further than Tewksbury. There's a gentleman right here in town who makes a spinnerbait that is (are you ready for this one?) guaranteed to catch bass or your money back!

Yeah, I said the same thing:

"Naah. Come off it."

It's true. Rusty Kraynick of 25 Patten Road, a pleasant sort of chap with a penchant for cowboy hats and country music, makes a few thousand spinnerbaits a year, which he sells at the New England Outdoors Exposition in Worcester every year and at a few of the better tackle shops in the area. At the annual outdoors expo, Rusty makes up custom spinnerbaits right on the spot, which he then sells for a few bucks a pop. And he sells literally thousands of "Rusty's Happy Hookers" at the week-long expo.

But his favorite, and the one that carries the guarantee, is the "Killer 007," and he pulls out one with a deep gouge in the lead head to prove it. While he said the gouge was made by a big pike on the Concord River, the principal is the same -- fish literally try to blast his spinnerbaits right out of the water.

"So long as it's a bass pond, and there's a bass anywhere near it, it's going to hit it." To prove his point, he has an 8-pound largemouth from Forge Pond in Westford, and an 8-pound-6 specimen from Badda-cook in Groton, both mounted and both taken with his own spinnerbaits. He doesn't kid around when it comes to bass fishing.

The Killer 007 has a green head, twin chrome blades, a red eye with a black pupil, and a rubber skirt that's chartreuse and black.

"There's a color there for every kind of water," he said.

Rusty's spinnerbaits, by the way, are made entirely of American materials. His nickel-plated hooks come from Alabama, the stainless steel wire frames from Missouri, the lead heads are poured in Illinois

Spinnerbait craftsman

Russell "Rusty" Kraynick of Tewksbury makes, and sells, custom spinnerbaits for local anglers. From a basement workshop in his home on Patten Road, Rusty turns out literally thousands of spinnerbaits to sell at sportsmens shows and at a select few local tackle shops, including Bob's Bait and Tackle on Route 3A in Chelmsford. While he's been making spinnerbaits part-time for some ten years, he plans to shift into full-time production upon his retirement next year.

and the skirts are from Louisiana. But Rusty does the time-consuming part -- the painting of the heads and the final assembly.

Each head is given two coats of almost indestructible epoxy paint, then eyes are painted on, and a black dot in the center of each eye finishes the job. Painting takes four days total, he said, and he paints 150 at a whack. Next it's time to put it all together.

Once the correct size and color head is selected, a few beads are added to the wire shaft, then the blades are attached to swivels and the end of the wire is twisted to keep everything together. From blank, painted lure to a finished product takes under a minute. A few staples and a plastic bag and another Kray-Lure is ready for the tackle shop wall.

And it's a good thing that the job is so quick. For the upcoming expo in Worcester, Rusty will paint about 750 lead heads in each of two sizes and in eight colors, for a total of 12,000 spinnerbaits that he'll be offering for sale at the show.

But Rusty knows more about his lures than the card tells. He has different lures for different times of year and water conditions, and says he catches bass until the ice is too thick to drive his boat through. For late season bass he uses a spinnerbait with a big blade, since the vibrations are more attractive to bass made lazy by the cold water.

"In cold water you just feel the vibration of the blade," he said. "And when you don't feel the vibration anymore, you set the hook. Sometimes it's weeds, but usually it's a bass."

Rusty got his start in lurecrafting because of the poor quality he found in "professional" lures.

"The lures were lousy," he said, so he started making his own. Then a few friends tried his lures and asked for more, so he began making them in quantity. But his biggest boost came from Wilmington's late pro angler Al "Cappy"

Capuchetti, who convinced him to sell his creations.

Now, "Rusty's Happy Hookers" are available at Bob's Bait & Tackle in Chelmsford; at Barnacle Bill's in Littleton; Port Marine in Danvers and at Charlie's Bait & Tackle in Hanover. When he retires next year from Mitre Corp. in Bedford, he says he'll start devoting full time to making the best spinnerbaits in New England.

For now, though, local anglers may send for Rusty's spinnerbaits by mail to Kray-Lures, 25 Patten Road, Tewksbury, 01876, or by dropping by one of the above fishing tackle emporiums.

And remember, the green-headed Killer 007 is guaranteed.

Outdoors Column

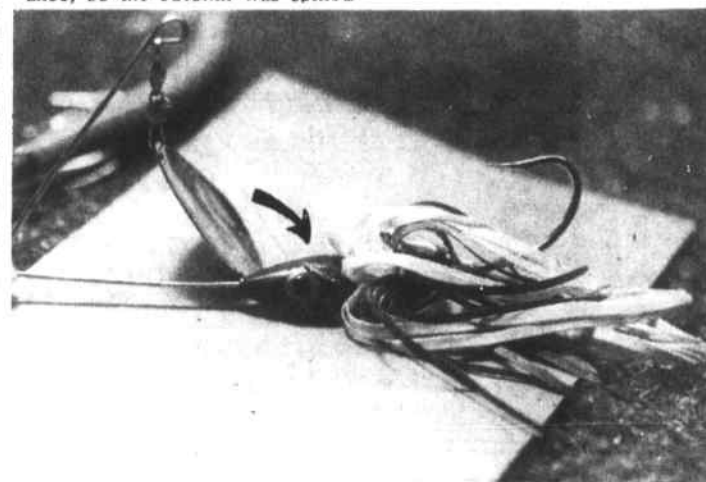

- Tackle Box -

Sorry there was no column last week, fans. There was an Outdoors Column on this page until the last minute, but editor Larz "Fred" Neilson decided not to run the column for various reasons.

Last week's column dealt with the new police range which just opened in Wilmington, and who should be allowed to use it. My ideas could end up being theoretically costly for Wilmington, to hire a range safety officer and to pay for insurance, so the column was spiked until the issue could be settled. So far the boss and I still disagree, and there the issue remains. Sorry.

Speaking of shooting, the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club will open up their range to the general public for a one-day "sighting-in" session on October 25 from 1 to 5 p.m. If you plan to hunt, it's best to make sure you can hit what you're aiming at. Bring your own targets, ammo and firearms, and if you have your own ear protection, you might want to bring that too. There is no charge for the sighting-in session.

Pike bite

One of Rusty's personal favorite spinnerbaits is his "Killer 007," which he guarantees to catch bass. A large Northern Pike on the Concord River took a deep bite (arrow) out of the lead head on this lure, while others in his possession are similarly beaten look to them.

Stoneham's Congregational Church dates to 1725

By BARBARA FLYNN

The history of the First Congregational Church of Stoneham began in 1725 when the Town of Stoneham was incorporated. At the first Stoneham Town Meeting it was stipulated that within two years there should be erected a suitable House of Worship. Accordingly in 1726 such a building was raised near the junction of Summer and Pleasant Streets. In 1803 a new Meeting House was erected on Spring Street and the old building was torn down. This traditions. Since the first church building was erected, the goal of the Stoneham First Congregational Church's pastor, staff, members, and the First Church family has remained the same — to welcome newcomers, to worship together, to increase the spirit of fellowship, to beautify this house of God, to enlarge its usefulness, and to be a vital contributing part of the community.

Worship services are held each Sunday from 10 to 11 a.m. Child care during services is provided and Sunday School classes are conducted during the same time period. Communion is celebrated on the first Sunday of each month to which all are invited. Each Sunday following services downstairs in the church hall, there is an hour of fellowship during which refreshments are provided by various groups of the church.

The First Congregational Church of Stoneham has an extensive Christian Education Program and believes that its Sunday School, Bible classes, junior and senior high youth fellowships, various social and service groups, and its church activities and events are the best way to reach out to the people of Stoneham and surrounding towns and cities to communicate the faith, caring and support of its church family.

First Church takes pride in contributing to the lives of the area's young people through its support of a junior and senior high youth fellowship and through its sponsorship of Boy Scout Troop 513. The Purpose School located at First Church was first started in 1943 and has grown and flourished over the years. It has earned an excellent reputation for the quality of its teaching staff and the learning opportunities it provides.

This world is ever-changing and its people are often on the move, sometimes transplanted from one community to another and sometimes from one state to another. First Church strives to be a place where long-time New England residents and second church was burned to the ground during a morning worship service in January, 1840. In the same year the main portion of the present church proper was erected on the site it now occupies on the corner of Main and Church streets just outside Stoneham Square.

Changes made to the building over the years have been many, but the front of the church with its white spire pointing upwards remains, as always, one of the best of the old New England

She's a popcorn fanatic

We think our far-flung correspondent has finally lost it, the NFL strike has given him time to do too much thinking, as you readers will see as you read on:

Remodeling your house is like having a wife who's pregnant. Once you've accepted the commitment, you go through a lot of disruption and aggravation, but the end result is worth it all.

I recently went through this harrowing experience. Remodeling my house, that is. There was, as I said, much pain and suffering associated with the project, but, as I also noted, it was all worthwhile in the end. Of course, it is easy to say this, now that the work is completed.

The fun begins at this point. Getting to show off the finished results is very gratifying. It also can lead to some rather interesting discourses, such as the one which took place between some close friends and me.

Upon seeing the new look of my humble abode, one of them piped up with the query, "Is this your dream house now?"

Well, truthfully, I had to say no. But I'm getting closer, I told them. And that led to a discussion over what exactly would constitute "a dream house." The suggestions ran the gamut from the most practical designs to the most outrageous rooms you could imagine. I'll share a few of our ideas with you:

One of our friends, a young woman by the name of Sandi, who lives in Cambridge, near Harvard Square, loves popcorn. No, she's a popcorn fanatic, which you might expect from somebody who lives near Harvard Square. She im-

Children's songs lead her to a new career

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Geri Cruickshank is a Stoneham Elementary Music Specialist, Wakefield resident, composer of children's songs, and most recently — by popular request — founder of her own music company. "For years, everywhere I went, people would say 'oh, I'd love a copy of that song,'" she says, and I'd have to say "there are no copies because I wrote it." I never intended to write a book. I'm just an ordinary music teacher."

Not only did Cruickshank eventually compose a first book in 1985, she's written four more music books since then; and all signs now indicate that she has only just begun a new phase in a music and teaching career spanning 27 years. "Suddenly, a few summers back, I could see that I had collections of songs all over my house so I put aside a little time and started out with a book called 'Numbers Up' which is now totally sold out," she says. "I began with the handwritten notes that I used for the workshops I was doing and for my teaching. I felt like I was prepared for the year with that one little book."

"I had also been writing all kinds of original tunes that had to do with the seasons," she continues, "so the next summer I wrote 'Seasonfest.' Then followed 'The Castle of the Seasons,' a four-act original musical fairy tale, in which the entire Colonial Park Elementary School participated. Fellow teacher and pianist Barbara Talanian assisted in that production and the children received standing ovations. No sooner did Cruickshank say to herself 'gee, the little kids don't have anything' than 'The Gunny Wolf,' an original dramatic movement play for four to seven year olds, came upon the scene — with new story, words and music by Cruickshank."

As a teacher of special needs teens for 20 years, she had been thinking for quite some time about doing something just for them. The result? "Special Songs for Special Teens" appeared this summer and is turning out to be even more special than anticipated: in her attempt to be comprehensive and personally meaningful to the class she teaches at Stoneham High, "Special Songs" appeals to children and adults of all ages and abilities. "I took familiar and favorite songs like 'You Are My Sunshine' or 'Take Me Out to the Ball Game' and it turned out that treating them for special needs youngsters made them distress." "Listening motivators" — such as playing the main melody on a suitable instrument, encouraging one student at a time to conduct a piece or attending live performances — place the emphasis on motivation. Like the contents of her other books, the melodies, methods, and games more popular with everybody," she says.

In addition to its collection of patriotic, well-known and specially written pieces, "Special Songs" includes "friendly material" and "listening motivators." Cruickshank defines "friendly material" as a listening lesson that wants to be danced, a song personalized with a student's own name or a song both lyrically and musically repetitious. Creative dramatics, bodily movement, and silly words make for "fail-proof listening lessons with a high motivational appeal that encourage success rather than included in "Special Songs" were chosen because they work.

They work so well that several book companies approached Cruickshank at a national music teachers' conference last year to ask if they could use her materials in their new collections. They work so well that school systems in New York and Tennessee are using them, and Cruickshank has formed her own company, "Music for Singing." The conference gave her access to a list of 10,000 music teachers whom she is contacting — one at

Fat is essential to kids

Many people have recently become aware of the health benefits of a diet lower in fat. High fat diets have been associated with increased risk of stroke, heart attack and cancer. But many people also assume that if a low fat diet is good for an adult, it must also be good for children, including young infants. According to a new booklet from the American Institute for Cancer Research that could be a serious mistake.

The American Institute for Cancer Research notes that while adults should limit fat in their diets, fat is an essential dietary element for developing children. Attempting to restrict dietary fat for children under 18 months of age, by limiting them to skim milk or low fat solid foods, may result in babies not getting the fat necessary for normal development of their brains and nervous systems.

The Institute's new booklet, "Infant Nutrition: Sound

Eating Habits Start Early," provides basic information on sound nutrition for young children.

The Institute notes that as a baby is switched over to solid foods it is important to begin teaching the child positive eating habits. This includes providing a broad variety of foods, with a special emphasis on fresh fruits and vegetables. It is also a good time to limit sweets. Although even newborn babies seem to be born liking sweets, studies have indicated that what the baby is fed during the first year may influence his taste for sweets later on.

The American Institute for Cancer Research is a national, nonprofit organization which focuses on the relationship between diet and cancer. Through its Dietary Guidelines for Lower Cancer Risk, the Institute has recommended that adults lower their dietary fat intake from the current average of 40 percent of calories to 30 percent or less. It has published "Infant Nutrition" to help make parents more aware of the proper nutritional standards which should apply for children and which can be different from those for adults.

A free copy of "Infant Nutrition" may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business size envelope to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. IN9, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Dealing with retinal detachment

Retinal detachment is a serious eye problem which can lead to total blindness. It can occur to anyone. Those who are nearsighted and those who have had surgery or injury to the eyes are particularly at risk for developing retinal detachment.

The early symptoms of this problem include flashing lights, or black spots sometimes referred to as floaters. When the retinal detachment is advanced, a curtain or veil appears to block your vision.

The retina is a special layer of nerve tissue that lines the inside of the eye. It is very much like film in a camera. If the retina separates from the wall of the eye it loses nourishment and withers like a flower whose stem is cut. When the retina detaches, vision can be lost.

Most often retinal detachments occur when holes develop in the retina. When holes are present, fluid from the center of the eye can pass through the hole. The retina can then separate from the wall of the eye much like wallpaper separating from the wall.

Retinal detachments can be avoided if the holes are sealed before the fluid has a chance to sneak through. The holes can be sealed with a specially focused light called a laser. Laser creates a reaction around the hole which prevents fluid from passing to the back side of the retina. Another technique involves freezing the area around the hole.

Both techniques are very effective and can be done as outpatient procedures in the eye surgeon's office. These treatments are only effective if the retina is still attached to the eye wall. If diagnosis and treatment are delayed, a more serious operation is necessary.

Regular examinations by a board certified ophthalmologist can help detect early retinal holes before they have a chance to develop into detachments. If you develop flashes of light or floaters, you should be seen by an ophthalmologist to be certain a retinal hole has not developed.

RENTING INDEPENDENCE
Formerly of Mr. Rent a Car — Mr. Lease a Car, Stan and Sterling Davis are pleased to announce, "We Are Going Independent."

After nine years in Woburn as Mr. Rent a Car — Mr. Lease a Car Franchise they feel they can better serve Woburn and the surrounding communities as an independent auto rental agency. With the fast rising costs of vehicles and insurance rates and the slow rising pay increases, this allows them to hold the line on rental rates.

Located at the Ramada Hotel, Woburn, Allied Leasing and Rentals will still offer a price conscience, service oriented company that specializes in the short term rental of automobiles as well as long-term consumer leasing.

The services provided are as follows:

1. Accept most major credit cards as well as qualified cash customers.
2. Direct bill insurance companies on theft and substitution transportation claims.
3. Pick up customers at their facilities or at their place of choosing within our area.
4. Return customers to their vehicle or place of choosing upon completion of rental.

WORD & IMAGE GRAPHICS
Word and Image, a design consulting and graphics service specializing in publication and presentation materials, recently opened in North Reading.

Using state-of-the-art computer graphics technology, combined with conventional graphic arts production, Ilse Schenk, president and designer, will be able to offer business clients a variety of custom services.

Publication design, including image scanning (reproduction from another source) and typesetting (linotronic or laser), will be available for producing promotional literature, advertising layouts, stationery, logos; and book, magazine or newsletter page layouts.

To assist companies in sales presentations, staff orientation or training and other meetings where professional communication graphics are required, Word & Image will be able to produce charts, graphs, posters, 35mm slides and other speaker support materials, such as flip charts, audience handouts and overhead transparencies.

For more ambitious projects, completely computer-programmed, custom-designed audiovisual multi-screen productions are available as well.

In addition, Word & Image offers on-site staff training seminars in publication design and desktop publishing, providing companies with technical support for their own in-house production of effective visuals. With many years of experience in the design and production of presentation materials, Word & Image now combines traditional production methods with the latest in electronic technology. For further information, call 664-4088.

LIVE-IN SEMINAR FOR ENTREPRENEURS

The Entrepreneurial Management Program, a three-day "live-in" seminar, will be held October 25-28 at the Ocean Edge Conference Center, Brewster. Sponsored by The Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc. (SBANE) and Babson College, the seminar will address the core issues of small company management from the unique perspective of the CEO.

Using case study discussions, and drawing heavily from practical experience, the program will cover the essential disciplines of general management, strategic marketing, finance, and human resource development. Limited in size, the seminar offers the small company president a chance to learn from his peers while under the direction of a distinguished faculty experienced with entrepreneurial endeavors.

Cost of the "live-in" seminar, which includes room, board and materials, is $1,800 for SBANE members and $1,950 for non-members. For more information, contact SBANE at 69 Hickory Dr., Waltham, Ma, telephone (617)890-9070.

11.2 percent FEMALE FRANCHISE OWNERS

Women in Franchising, Inc. (WIFI), a Boston-based company just completed the first research of its kind relative to women's involvement in franchise ownership. The preliminary results of this study, which polled 124 franchising companies in industries ranging from fast-food to day care, show that 11.2 percent of these companies' outlets are run solely by women. Additionally, 17.8 percent 17.8 percent of the units are run by male/female partnerships. Projecting these statistics over the approximate 2,000 franchising companies in the U.S. creates a potential universe of 80,000 franchised outlets with women involved as either sole or part-owners.

An in-depth analysis of these preliminary statistics will take place over the next 16 weeks, further identifying the characteristics of the female franchise entrepreneur. The final results of the study will be presented, for the first time, as part of a special "Women in Franchising" panel discussion at the International Franchise Association's (IFA) Annual Convention in San Francisco in January, 1988. In addition, the January, 1988 issue of Franchising World, the IFA magazine, will publish these findings.

mediately proposed that her dream house would contain a room full of popcorn.

"I'd like to plop myself right in the middle of a huge pile of popcorn and watch tv," she said. "All I'd have to do is roll over a little and grab a big mouthful. I'd never have to get up! When I got bored, I'd have a huge bowl of M&Ms nearby. I'd have to get up for those, though. I wouldn't want to get too lazy."

Another person in the group, this time one of our male buddies, a cat by the name of Scott, suggested he'd like to have a beach room in his dream house. The idea of a beach room in his house didn't surprise us. He's your quintessential California beach boy. But how he was going to design this room left us in a quandary.

He explained: "It's simple enough: there'd be an indoor swimming pool in the middle of this huge room. Only it would have tons of white sand all around it. And of course, there'd be plenty of lounge chairs, suntan oil, coolers and beach balls hanging around. I'd have a big skylight in the middle of the ceiling, so that the sun would shine in all the time. Well, unless it was behind clouds. Then I'd have plenty of sunlamps kicking around. I could pipe in Beach Boys music, just to enhance the mood."

Al, another buddy of ours, said he'd like to have what he described as a King Richard Dining Room as the focal point of his dream house. This also didn't come as a shock, since he loves to eat and eat and eat. "What a great room to visit after being in the beach room all afternoon! Wouldn't it be wonderful to pig out and just be able to toss the bones anywhere you liked? It would be kind of like the way Marilyn Monroe used to behave in her bedroom. She'd lie on satin sheets and gorge herself with chicken wings, than just toss the bones across the room. It would be so decadent!"

While the clean-up crew arrived to pick up the mess we left behind, we would have to retire to one of my favorite rooms: the quintessential drinking room, replete with Crystal champagne flowing from a huge fountain in the middle of the floor. This fountain would make David Letterman's fountain look like a water fountain down the corridor from your office. And this would be just the beginning. I'd like to have a bar set up to resemble the one at the Copley Plaza. Why travel in town when you can have the same thing in the middle of your drinking room?

Carol, who also lives in Cambridge, indicated we would all need a health room to visit after we finished stuffing ourselves with food and liquor. Good suggestion, Carol. "And there would have to be the addition of a beauty room for the women," she tossed in matter-of-factly. "We women must maintain our facial looks as well as our bodies."

We all agreed upon that, then quickly segued to the next suggestion. Sandi again: "I think there should be an agony room."

We all regarded her with puzzled expressions. We never took Sandi for the kinky type. "Well, you've got to please everybody," she added.

Her idea stuck me humorously, then I recalled a good friend from Wilmington who used to be a professional wrestler. He owned one of the most magnificent houses I'd ever been in, yet he didn't have a single window in the place. I thought, well, Sandi is right. There are always going to be folks with avantgarde tastes in houses, and you've got to be willing to try to please everybody. We concluded that the agony room would have no windows.

Carol then suggested we design a bathroom to top all bathrooms. "It would be a fun bathroom. Perhaps the shower could be designed like a giant water slide. Wouldn't that be fun? Imagine waking up in the morning and diving down this giant water slide? Now that would be different!"

Scott, the California beach bum, remarked he'd like to have a bedroom that not only had a vibrating bed, but the whole room vibrated. "I'd call it the earthquake room. I wouldn't turn the earthquake room on, though, unless I wanted to make my visiting California friends feel at home. It would be strictly for effect, you understand."

Sure, Scott, whatever you say. (And you readers think this columnist is strange!) With that suggestion we motioned that the next ideal room would be one in place of the traditional living room. It would be known as the Church Room. The Church Room would have an altar and plenty of candles. We would definitely need to visit this room after spending time in the other rooms. It would also be a good place to put your Born Again friends, who would most likely not enjoy the other rooms. We have a Born Again friend in our circle of friends (in fact, there are several), and we all agreed that the Church Room would be their favorite place to visit.

Al said there was one other room he'd like to incorporate into his dream house. It would be a magnificent game room. "I'd also like to include in this room a library of tapes of the greatest sporting events in history," he said, adding, "because there are so many strikes in professional sports these days, you'd have to have something to watch on the wide-screen tv I'd have in there."

This columnist came up with one more suggestion: a money room, where you would have to print up lots of greenbacks, because it would cost all of us a tremendous amount of money to pay for this so-called "dream house." In the final analysis, we all conclude we'd rather stick with the humble abodes in which we currently live.

Mine is just dreamy enough, thank you.

ANTIQUE SHOW AND SALE

The Church of the Good Shepherd, Reading, will sponsor its 4th Annual Antique Show and Sale on Friday, October 23, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday, October 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Quality antique dealers will display a wide variety of antiques, including paperweights, open salts, glassware, porcelain, silver, jewelry and furniture. Antique books will be of interest to many, along with antique toys and games, clocks, trunks, linens and "country" decorator items and accessories.

The Country Kitchen will offer quiche, salad, homemade baked goods, fish chowder, tuna salad rolls and hot dogs. The church is located at 95 Woburn Street, Reading, on the corner of Chute and Woburn streets. Admission charge is $2.

CRAFT EXHIBITORS NEEDED

Red Sneakers/Wellington School, 75 Pearl Street, Reading, is seeking exhibitors for the 7th Annual Fair, Saturday, December 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For information, please call Pam Krupanski, 689-2488 or Freda Graham-Rogers, 658-2759.

PARENTS ANONYMOUS

There is now a new Parents Anonymous chapter available for parents in Wakefield and surrounding towns. The Eastern Middlesex Council for Children formed an Advisory Committee to work with staff of P.A.'s state office and jointly developed this chapter for local residents.

Parents Anonymous groups are self-help, support groups that meet weekly with a professional resource person. There are no fees, registration or paperwork of any kind. What goes on in group meetings is confidential and members use only their first ideas and support from other parents.

P.A. gives parents a place to change and to learn to enjoy their children again while building a more positive and healthy relationship. Sometimes being a parent is more than we bargained for. Parents Anonymous can help.

For more information about this new Wakefield chapter, or about any P.A. chapter, just call the State Resource office toll free at 1-800-882-1250.

EXPECTANT FATHERS

Childbirth Education of the North Shore announces a Saturday morning workshop for men only. This will provide an opportunity to discuss what it is like living with a pregnant woman and what a father-to-be experiences during a pregnancy and with the birth of a baby.

Come join other expectant fathers for coffee and discussion on October 24 at 9 a.m.

Registration in advance is required. For additional information and to register call Carolyn at 664-4889.

LISTENING PLACE

The Listening Place Coffeehouse at 45 Center Street, Burlington (phone 272-7330) will present Bill Morrissey and Gary Hall on Saturday, October 24 at 8 p.m. (doors open at 7:30).

CRANBERRY HARVEST DAYS

Cranberry Harvest Days, now through October 18, at Edaville Railroad in South Carver. The family festival features a narrated 5½-mile train ride past the colorful bogs where the berries are harvested.

Edaville Railroad is open daily, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturday, Sunday and holidays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The family fun park is located five miles north of I-495, off Route 58 in South Carver. For more information, call 866-4526.

VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT

The American Lung Association of Middlesex County is inviting any co-ed volleyball team to participate in the first Annual Co-Educational Volleyball Tournament to benefit the American Lung Association of Middlesex County.

The tournament will be held at the Weston High School on Saturday, November 21. There will be three playing sections scheduled for 9 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. All teams are guaranteed five qualifying games. There is a twelve player roster limit. The Lung Association is offering top quality Converse prizes for individual and team fundraising efforts.

Join the fun and help the American Lung Association spike out lung disease. For further information, call the Lung Association at 272-2866 or Joe Andrews (6 to 10 p.m., any evening) at 686-2700.

FAMILY DAY CARE PROVIDERS

The Family Day Care Providers Network of the Mystic Valley Council for Children in Winchester is starting up its third year of monthly meetings. These meetings are conducted on the third Wednesday of each month at the First Congregational Church, 21 Church Street, Winchester, from 7 to 9 p.m. and available to all Family Day Care Providers.

The subject for the Oct. 21 meeting will be Limit Setting (how parents and providers can work together). The moderator for this evening will be Sheila Martin, a local provider and present chairperson for the Network.

The aims of this network are to meet with providers to help alleviate problems, provide contacts to just chat with, and offer helpful information on such subjects as simple art projects, Red Cross information, positive approach to parent and providers problems, dealing with stress, and the effect of family day care on your family. This is a great opportunity to come, meet and socialize with others like yourselves who are providing the very necessary but a time, "I'm only myself so I'm going slowly," she says. "A mailing of 500, even with labels, takes me two weeks. This is not happening overnight."

But, it is happening. She's gotten a lot of positive feedback in the form of letters and phone calls from other teachers and companies; she's planning to do more workshops, locally when the opportunity arises; and, of course, she's still teaching and will produce an original version of Dicken's "Christmas Carol" for the fourth and fifth grades at Central Elementary School this year — "whether it's finished or not."

"Sometimes when you're teaching — elementary school especially — after 10 years all the tunes seem the same and you just can't find different material," she says. "What I love best is knowing that I can help my fellow teachers get new materials and feel that there is something new under the sun. By writing my own music for my students, I'm helping other teachers with theirs, and that really makes me feel good."

According to Frank Abrahams, a member of the New England Conservatory's Music Education Department and Program Director of Fine Arts in the Stoneham Public Schools, Cruickshank offers a rare combination of ability in music and teaching that blends a simple philosophy with profound music. Just as her tunes almost sing themselves, their lyrics speak for themselves to everyone: "Roses and cobblestones, sunshine and ice cream cones, where will the days all go when we're all grown up? Brickyards and fairy tales, Batman and dirty nails . . . Birthdays and Santa Claus, kitties with double paws . . . Third base to home plate, December to May, growing up taller each hour we play . . ."

"I try to give the children experiences that come totally from their own psyches, music they can dance and move to or play, laugh and cry with; on their level with nothing contrived," she says. "It's a little special gift that I can give and they just love it. So do I!"

MIDLIFE TRANSITION

Working women, women in sales and those in their midlife years will be interested in groups offered this Fall by Lifeskills in North Andover.

The Working Women's Group will address such concerns as balancing personal, family and job responsibilities, time and stress management and overcoming work related difficulties. This six session group will meet on consecutive Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning October 20.

A Women In Sales Group will address staying motivated, time and stress management, sales strategies as well as some of the same topics covered in the Working Women's Group. This group will meet six consecutive Wednesdays from noon to 1:30 p.m. beginning October 28. Participants are welcome to bring a brown bag lunch.

The Midlife Transitions Group will address such topics as the joys and frustrations of the midlife experience, assessment of one's life, past and present, setting realistic future goals, dealing with concerns of time pressure, mortality, lost youth and personal needs. This six session group will meet from 9:30 to 11 a.m. on Thursdays, beginning October 29.

Each group will combine discussion, support, skill building and problem solving. Exact content area will be determined by participant needs. A $20 per session fee will cover all group costs including a materials packet and refreshments.

Pre-registration is required as space is limited. Please contact Ms. Isenberg at 794-3044 for further information or to reserve your place.

The Aurora Trio will appear in concert

The Aurora Trio, a truly noel ensemble of flute, harp and bassoon, will appear at the Stoneham High School on October 19 at 8:15 p.m., the second concert in the season series sponsored by the Greater Stoneham Community Concert Association.

The Aurora Trio has delighted both laymen as well as musicians across the nation with the balance, clarity and precision of their brilliant performances since it was first organized in 1974. Each member of the trio is an accomplished soloist as well as chamber musician, all graduates of the Julliard School of Music and each has received many awards and prizes, and each has appeared as soloists with orchestras internationally, and in many major music festivals. Together they make a yearly tour of the United States.

The bassoon, the least known instrument to lay audiences, contributes significantly to the trio's sound because of its ability to be both lyrical and comical, known often as the clown of the orchestra. Andrew Cordle's performances have brought him the highest critical acclaim. He has recorded for Orion Master Recordings, and for European and South American radio and television. The versatile Mr. Cordle arranges music from other instruments for the trio, since few pieces have been composed for this particular group of instruments. He is also a gifted composer, clarinetist and harpist. Currently he is principal bassoonist of the Springfield (Massachusetts) Symphony and a faculty member at Nyack College.

Flutist Renee Krimsier has appeared as a soloist with the Boston Pops, the New England Conservatory Orchestra, and the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra. She was an outstanding student at both Julliard and New England Conservatory.

Harpist Stacey Shames, also a Julliard graduate, has performed extensively with orchestras both in United States which reveals their skill and the versatility of their instrument.

Their usual programs include a wide variety of music from six centuries, from the lively court dances of King Richard the Lionhearted, to Gershwin preludes, pieces as delightful as Gershwin's beloved Broadway tunes. Their favorite compositions to perform include works of Ravel, Debussy and Dvorak and the increasingly popular Little Canon by Johannes Pachelbel. Included in their programs is the Folk Song Suite based on the folk tunes and songs of England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland arranged by Mr. Cordle, comprising a comic version of "What Shall We Do with the Drunken Sailor," "Blow the Man Down," "Bonny Doon," "The Washerwoman" and others.

The Aurora Trio's with its unique grouping of instruments, and with the member's fine musicianship promises to be a concert long remembered by Community concert members.

Members are reminded of the final concert of the Merrimack Valley Community Concert Association in Lowell on November 21, a complimentary concert to all Stoneham members.

For further information and for membership passes call local membership workers Mrs. Robert Leavitt, 944-5262 or Mrs. Ernest Degel, 944-5632 or write to G.S.C.A., Box 275, Reading, Ma. 01867 or inquire at the door before the coming concert.

The Aurora Trio

and Ireland, where she also studied at the Royal Irish Academy of Music. At age 14 she was presented in a joint recital at Carnegie Hall with pianist Tania Fleischer. She has given live solo recital on Irish Radio, participated in harp contests in Jerusalem and Geneva. She is at present the principal harpist of the New Haven Symphony Orchestra.

The youthfulness of the members of the Aurora Trio precludes any wall of formality with their audiences; their informal approach in concerts everywhere has endeared them to their listeners. Each gives interesting explanations of the range, capabilities and peculiarities of their instrument, and each notes the background of the music they present, both with a light touch of humor. Each performs a solo

Hospice Care, Inc. needs volunteer workers

Hospice Care, Inc. invites men and women who may be interested in becoming volunteer Hospice Support Workers to an information meeting on Wednesday, October 21, 7:45 p.m., 20 Academy Street, Arlington.

Hospice Care is a non-profit, Medicare certified organization providing a full range of services to terminally ill patients and their families.

Workers are carefully selected and trained men and women who provide emotional support through the patient's illness and death and the family's bereavement. These volunteers visit regularly and provide comfort and assistance in innumerable, helpful ways. The Support Workers meet regularly for ongoing support and education.

The main qualifications for becoming a Hospice Support Worker are a sensitive concern for people, a willingness to use oneself in a caring flexible way, and a commitment to the Hospice philosophy. Hospice Support Workers come from many different age groups, educational backgrounds and work situations and experience real feelings of self-satisfaction and self-growth through their hospice work.

A new training program is planned. To learn more about becoming a Hospice Support Worker come to the October 21st meeting or call 648-3172.

New tax law will affect divorced people

Divorced and separated persons who pay or receive alimony under a court agreement should know how changes in the new tax law affect them, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The limitations on alimony or separate maintenance payments have been eased. Alimony or separate maintenance payments need be made only during the first three post-separation years rather than six. Also, the amount of annual payments that are exempt from the front-loading limitation is increased to $15,000 (from $10,000).

"Alimony may be deductible by the person paying it if certain requirements are met," District Director John D. Johnson said. If the alimony is deductible by the payer, it is taxable to the recipient.

Free IRS Publication 504, "Tax Information for Divorced or Separated Individuals," explains the tax treatment of alimony in more detail. Taxpayers may order the publication by calling 1-800-424-3676.

By ANTHONY MANCONI

One of the illusions of life is that the 'present' is not the critical, decisive and important time of our lives. Please folks, write it in your hearts that 'now,' this very hour, this present day is the 'best' time of our lives. No one owns the day if he or she allows it to be invaded by worry, problems and anxiety, so finish each day and be done with it! If you didn't do your best today then by all means strive to do better tomorrow.

While mailing a package I asked a lady (who was doing the same) if she reads my column in the Middlesex East Supplement. I don't know how she guessed it but she said, "Do you write that crazy Woodchips column?" Well I was going to say that I didn't but, after that compliment I owned up and said, "Yes, I do." "I read it every week, but I just can't make you out. You say something beautiful, touching and serious, then 'wham' you 'wack' your readers with a joke, pun or quip." I thanked the lady after I explained to her, "That is precisely the reason for Woodchips. It should help the readers see the humorous side of a situation, problem and condition."

I was still in line at the post office when she came back to say, "I'm sorry I called your column crazy but I do admit I love to read it." No problem lady, my Navy psychiatrist told me years ago, "You're crazy!" I demanded a second opinion and he shouted, "Okay, you're 'ugly' too!" "Is that so?" I exclaimed, "well you look like you posed for the picture on the iodine bottle yourself!"

I never met a young man with more personality, enthusiasm and drive than Walter Surratt of Tewksbury. He graduated from Merrimac College and is an engineer. I predict a great future for this happy, always smiling courier of good will.

I love, admire and respect all the sisters, especially the Sisters of St. Joseph, because my late aunt was one of them. I remember asking her one hot summer day if wearing (what I thought) a cumbersome habit was unbearable. She smiled and said, "The torrid heat of the day is controlled by 'air conditioning,' the mind with prayer." On one of her rare visits to our home we decided to walk to church, and seeing a raggedly looking gentleman standing on a corner, my aunt said, "Here, give these two dollars to him and tell him 'don't despair.'" The next morning I answered the doorbell and there was the pitiful man from the day before. "Good morning," he said, "here give this to the nun you were with yesterday and tell her 'Don't Despair' came in and paid 20-1!"

Woodchips welcomes a third member of a family of firefighters of North Reading, William Warnock, who recently was sworn in by Town Administrator Jeff Zager. Bill's grandfather John is retired and his father is William H. Warnock. Woodchips congratulates

Mr. William Leccese of Stoneham, who was recently appointed principal of the Proctor School in Topsfield. I love the poster Mr. Leccese had made up that said, "Coming together is a beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is Success."

Folks, I'm tired of seeing bumper stickers saying "I'm Irish" or "Italian," or "Ethiopian." It is commendable that one remembers his or her roots, but please consider this; your parents or ancestors (and mine) came to America to breathe in the cool refreshing air of freedom of opportunity for all. It's a free country so you can put those bumper stickers on your cars if you want to. The only one you'll ever see on my car is "America, you're my country, first, second and always."

Prime Minister Gladstone was very persistent in asking Queen Victoria to be compassionate and sign a measure that offered relief to the poorer people of England. Losing her patience because of the constant demands she shouted one day, "Sir Gladstone, you forget who I am. I am Queen Victoria of England!" "Your Majesty," he replied, "you forget who I am, I am the 'people' of England!"

Scientists have discovered a cure for Insomnia. It's called 'sleep.' Bob Burns said reading Woodchips helps him sleep.

I am extremely happy that I met Grace Boutwell because she proved to be the beautiful gracious lady that I always imagined her to be as I talked to her many times on the telephone. A few other people who I will meet personally and I just know they will be 'wonderful' like Grace are: Carol Dolan of North Reading; Sandy, Walter, and David Arsenault of Pinewood Garden; Ruth Haggerty of Woburn; Bill Cerretani of Stoneham; Connie Johnson of Honeycomb, Wakefield; Jerry and Kathleen Ellis of 'Donuts and More,' Fr. Martin Ryan and Tina Braceland, all of Burlington.

Most people who are said to have 'green thumbs' invariably also have 'brown knees.' I am not an expert gardener, but this I do know, it's almost a crime to rake up all the leaves, put them in plastic bags and they end up in a dump. There must be an area somewhere in your garden where they can be composted and then returned to Mother Nature. Incidentally, Gale O'Malley, a garden club member said that 'Father Time' married 'Mother Nature' and they had 'Four Seasons.'

Woodchips congratulates Paul Butt and Charles Doucette for receiving the Rotary International's highest award the "Paul Harris Fellowships." Paul and Charles are both past presidents of the Wilmington Rotary Club. President Ed Nash, Donna Butt, and District Governor Dan Moran were present at the ceremonies.

My cousin Danny O'Donnell had to give up his job installing mufflers, he came home every night 'exhausted.'

"Why are you throwing almost every other nail away?" my father asked a new helper who was shingling the side of a house. "The heads of the nails are facing the wrong way," "Well," my father told him, "don't throw any more away, save those for the 'other' side of the house!" Folks, can you imagine that we built about 40 houses in the very early 50's and they all sold for less than $20,000 each.

The very first Irish tailor I ever met was Tom Burke of Ostuni's in Burlington. The sign in the window said, "Tom Burke, CPA." "Tom," I said, "CPA to me means Certified Public Accountant." "Well, for me," Tom replied, "they mean Cleaning, Pressing and Alterations!" Gaspar, one of the owners of Ostuni's told me that Tom Burke has a 'vested' interest in the business. Frank Guillian, a Winchester plumber, had an 'elbow' repaired on a sport coat. John Mullen, a retired Edison electrician had a 'light suit' cleaned and pressed. John tried to pay with his electrician's 'charge plate,' but Tom was 'shocked' because he accepts 'cash' only and nothing on the 'cuff.' I 'button-holed' Tom and told him that this is the end of the skit because I'm at the 'end of my rope.'

"Woodchipper," Tom said, "with jokes like that you should be at the 'end of a rope.'"

Princess Bride
Three O'Clock High

The Princess Bride Starring Cary Elwes, Mandy Patinkin, Chris Sarandon, Christopher Guest, Andre the Giant, Robin Wright. Directed by Rob Reiner. Produced by Reiner and Andrew Scheiman. Screenplay by William Goldman, based upon his book. Rated PG (mild profanity and violence).

Once upon a time there was a book about a fairy tale that defied the normal conventions mapped out by the powers that rule Never-Never Land. But sometimes the hoi polloi like things a little spicy, so when William Goldman's cynical/funny fantasy, The Princess Bride, hit the book stands in 1973, it did very well.

But Goldman, an Oscar-winning screenwriter, guarded the rights to the book as if it were a key to a mythical kingdom. No one was going to unravel its cinematic secrets until he or she proved worthy of the task. Rob Reiner, a directorial knight who always manages to emerge victorious from box-office battles assured Goldman they shared the same vision. And they did, as the movie is also a cynical/funny fantasy.

While Reiner doesn't quite take a large enough satiric stand for audiences who have grown to love his movies, he gets us close. The warmth of Stand By Me and the humor of The Sure Thing are eminent, but the sting of This is Spinal Tap is lacking. Now, if you weren't expecting that biting edge, then Bride is just dandy. But after hearing all the raves, you may be just a tad disappointed at the meekness of it all. We have learned to expect a lot from Reiner and he just gripped the reins too firmly with this one.

But when this "Bride" gets going, she positively glows. There are Cliffs of Despair, a six-fingered pirate, a dashing hero, a giant, a Jewish warlock and a fire swamp infested with giant rodents. What Goldman did in his book, and what Reiner did in his movie, was skip the boring parts. So, what we have here is a fairy tale with all the swash and none of the buckle. This is the kind of escapism made for adults that kids can also enjoy.

Reiner couldn't have done better placing his cast, from conniving Wallace Shawn as a gabby villain to the wiry Carey Elwes as the much-beleaguered lover of Buttercup, the Princess trying to sidestep the bride issue. But it's Mandy Patinkin who steals the show, and he does so with a rapier's edge. As a Spanish kidnapper out to avenge his father's death, Patinkin, looking lean and mean, breathes a passion into the film that it would otherwise lack. Elwes and Robin Wright as Buttercup are charming, but don't exactly get your blood stirring. But Patinkin's lively sword play and fiery sentiment gives the film's rather cute focus a sharp, slightly sad dimension.

Three O'Clock High Starring Casey Siemaszko, Richard Tyson, Jonathan Wise. Directed by Phil Joanou. Produced by David E. Vogel. Screenplay by Richard Christian Matheson and Thomas Szollosi. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

Since it looks remarkably like a student film, it's not surprising to learn that Three O'Clock High is director Phil Joanou's first feature film, and that this recent film school graduate only has two TV credits to his name. What is surprising is that he's had any experience at all.

Even before the plot causes your eyes to glaze over, your senses will be so accosted by the artsy-craftsy photography that your attention is shifted from the story to the machinations of the film. Not a good thing. The incessant close-ups of mundane objects and the overhead, underfoot and zoom shots would have you believe this was a test film for a new camera. All Joanou achieved with this "innovative" camera work was to draw attention away from a lousy movie to his own inadequate talents.

The film itself is one of those high school coming of age flicks we thought we'd seen the last of, as the genre has certainly been on the decline for the last year or so. Casey Siemaszko plays a dull, straight-arrow type who throws all his scruples to the wind when the muscle-bound school bully picks a fight with him. In order to avoid the showdown after school, this smarmy, pasty-faced kid gets involved in extortion, a felonious weapons charge, grand theft and finally, fistfuffs. But by the time he throws his first punch, you wish someone would have slugged the director.

Siemaszko and his antagonist, played by Richard Tyson, both look old enough to have kids of their own. Tyson is required to do little more than groan, but Siemaszko is supposed to carry this movie. And he does; he carries it right down the tubes.

His portrayal of a moany milquetoast is so badly executed he immediately becomes an annoyance, and never once elicits sympathy from the audience.

The writers obviously followed a computer-generated synopsis of what a teen movie should contain, because the school security guard is a Nazi, the principal is mean and stupid, as are most of the adults, except for one smoldering, seemingly mindless female teacher. There are holes in the plot that are just glossed over and the finale is so excessively and ridiculously joyous you'll wish that cinemas came equipped with fast-forward buttons. Although when this loser hits cable, the off switch will do just fine.

Short takes

Maurice has lovely costumes, photography and performances, but just doesn't ring true. This story of homosexuality in post-Victorian England lacks the necessary warmth and charm to keep us interested in the characters and their constrained plight until we find ourselves staring at them, not listening to them. Rated R.

Someone to Watch Over Me is a thriller sadly lacking excitement, unless you count the lively performance of Lorraine Bracco as the sassy wife of police detective Tom Berenger. He's on a case that entangles him with an icy society lady, but their romance comes across as flat as the storyline, which is much too easy to figure out. Rated R.

In the Mood is a so-so comedy based on the true story of Sonny Wisecarver, the "Woo-Woo Kid," who ran off with a 21-year-old woman when he was only 15. Part of the problem is that Patrick Dempsey is not a strong enough actor to carry the lead. Not helping is that the 1940s setting feels too contemporary to be convincing. Rated PG-13.

Like Father, Like Son is an unoriginal comedy peopled with talented actors who should have been given a more interesting script. Dudley Moore and Kirk Cameron play a father and a son who trade minds and learn how to relate to each other in the process of trading back. Gee, doesn't this sound just like Disney's Freaky Friday? Rated PG-13.

Baby Boom is a conventional comedy that plays by the numbers and should really have been called Baby Bust. Diane Keaton looks and acts better than she has in years, but she could have found a better vehicle than this Yuppie tribute to motherhood. The film ends up sending a muddled message about women being able to "have it all" but if you can't even laugh at the jokes, how can you buy the sentiment? Rated PG.

I've Heard the Mermaids Singing is a tender, original comedy about a klutzy office temp whose dream world often crosses over into the triviality of her life. Sheila McCarthy is charming as the quirky secretary who starts to believe the snobbish views of her gallery-owner boss until she manages to teach the boss a lesson about the simpler pleasures in life. No Rating.

Amazon Women on the Moon is a sort of sophisticated Kentucky Fried Movie that parodies typical TV fare, the best of which is a grade Z Fifties sci-fi about buxom lunar women. This sort of head-on, energetic comedy doesn't always work on a large screen, but with a few exceptions the barbs ring hilariously true. This would be a great choice if you've had a hard day at work. Rated R.

Matewan is director John Sayles' best picture to date. Carefully crafted and detailed, the story builds to a fiery conclusion as striking West Virginia coal miners battle it out with company men. Based on a true incident in the 1920s, the film weaves tragedy with hope and is sure to stick in your mind long after you've seen it. Rated PG-13.

Hellraiser is a gory horror flick that is bloodier than scary and isn't helped by the fact that make-up was considered more important than plot and character development. Still, first time director (and horror novelist) Clive Barker has a black sense of humor, so we may see something better from him in the future than this ragged film about a once-human creature who drinks blood in order to return to his old self. Rated R.

Fatal Attraction is an off-beat thriller about a family man who has an affair with a loony-tunes editor. Glenn Close is chilling as the unbalanced woman who doesn't want to be cast aside and Michael Douglas is every bit her equal as the hunted lover. The camera work is a little strange, and Adrian Lyne is a manipulative director relying on sensationalism, but this is such edge-of-your-seat fun that it's best to close one eye to the flaws and go with the flow. Rated R.

The Pick-up Artist is billed as a comedy, but don't buy it, this is really a drama with a few funny moments, very few indeed. Robert Downey, not the most convincing of actors, plays the young man led through life by his hormones and not his brain cells. He meets his match in Molly Ringwald, a museum guide with family problems he thinks he can cure. Except for Ringwald's charming performance, there's not much here that hasn't been in another movie first. Rated PG-13.

The Principal might not send the best moral message of might makes right, but there is something intriguing about a film that takes such chances. Jim Belushi plays a screw-up of a teacher who's assigned the toughest high school in the district. Using strong arm tactics, he tries to get rid of the worst offenders and push the rest into classrooms. It's nasty, dark and what sentiment there is borders on the sloppy, but it remains an interesting idea. Rated R.

The Big Easy is easily digestible fun. The plot may have more than a few loose ends that are never quite sewn up, but this is so entertaining it doesn't much matter. Smiling that famous boyish grin, Dennis Quaid steams up the room with Ellen Barkin, who comically stumbles through her role. He's a corrupt New Orleans cop, she's a tough-minded D.A. and with all that humor, romance and lively Cajun music, the fumbling violence of the plot is easily overlooked. Rated R.

Trivia

Scientists at the University of Florida have found a real off-the-wall reason why some common houseplants mysteriously wither and die. It seems that mercury added to some paints to retard mildew is highly toxic to some indoor plants. Because of their sensitivity, such plants could prove useful for selecting low levels of toxic chemicals in the indoor environment. International Wildlife magazine reports.

Runners raise money for NEMH Sports Medicine Clinic

A steady rain did not discourage the 73 runners who raced around Spot Pond during the September 20 running of the 10 Healthy Ks Road Race, sponsored by New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) in Stoneham.

The road race raised $5,433, to be used to purchase new equipment for the NEMH Sports Medicine Clinic.

The overall male winner was Edwin G. Hurlow, 11 Gerry Street, Stoneham, who finished with a time of 32:05. The overall female winner was Peggy Connors, 18 School Street, Reading, who crossed the finish line at 47:55. Both runners won a $50 gift certificate to Michael's Grand Cru restaurant in Peabody.

Two lightweight, 12-speed bicycles, donated by the Stoneham Savings Bank, were given away in a drawing following the race. The bicycle winners were Robert L. Bell, Jr., 173 Ashland Street, Melrose, and Lou Ruggiero, 210 Montvale Avenue, Woburn. All runners received an official race scrub shirt, courtesy of Stoneham Auto Body, Stoneham Cooperative Bank and BayBank.

The winners in other categories were:

Under 18 Male — Paul Shea, 44 Gould Street, Stoneham (32:58)

Under 18 Female — Julie Kaufman, 5 Woodland Road, Stoneham (58:40)

18-29 Male — James Hebert, 282 Main Street, Melrose (32:40)

18-29 Female — Hildy Meadvin, 200 Ledgewood Drive, Stoneham (47:55)

30-39 Male — Ray Devereaux, 86 Pierce Street, Malden (33:32)

30-39 Female — Peggy Figgins-Hill, 126 Pond St., Stoneham (53:35)

40-55 Male — Robert W. Wellmann, 8A West Street, Stoneham (40:51)

40-55 Female — Margie McGagh, 46 Brookbridge Road, Stoneham (59:38)

Over 55 Male — Henry S. Bagley, Jr., 45 Norman Road, Melrose (46:30)

NEMH Employee Male — Jerry Kaufman, 5 Woodland Road, Stoneham (41:00)

Good vision essential to class learning

With a new school year under way, it's important that the apple of your eye — your child — sees at his or her best for optimum learning.

"Good vision is vital to school achievement," says Dr. Michael Simons, senior vice president of professional affairs, Pearle Vision Center. "It's estimated that 80 percent of learning during the first 12 years of life is through seeing. Unfortunately, one in four school age children is troubled with eye problems that can affect performance in the classroom."

Experts estimate that 50 to 70 percent of all children classified as underachievers in school are actually troubled by vision problems. Vision disorders common among children include astigmatism, nearsightedness (an inability to see distant objects such as the blackboard), farsightedness (difficulty in focusing on near objects such as reading material), and eyestrain.

Another condition that is especially important to detect early is strabismus, commonly known as lazy eye. Usually, strabismus is caused when one eye turns in or out while the other sees straight, so that a double image may be sent to the brain. The child may solve this confusion by ignoring the message from one eye, gradually weakening it through disuse.

"It's important to schedule a thorough eye examination at the beginning of each school year to determine if your child is capable of handling the visual demands of the classroom, with long periods of close work as well as distant focusing to see the blackboard," says Dr. Simons.

Without a complete eye exam, vision disorders in children often go undetected. A child may be unaware that there is a visual problem since vision changes occur slowly and there is no basis of comparison.

In addition to the exam, Dr. Simons recommends that parents watch their child for signs which may indicate vision problems, including:

- poor grades, frequently an indicator of vision disorders;
- avoidance of close work;
- holding reading material closer than normal;
- an inability to concentrate for any length of time;
- frequently losing his or her place while reading;
- rubbing eyes frequently;
- recurring headaches;
- squinting when viewing distant objects;
- sitting very close to the television;
- omitting small words when reading;
- turning or tilting the head to use only one eye;
- poor handwriting;
- making reversals when reading or writing, and
- using a finger to maintain place while reading.

"With careful observation by parents for symptoms of vision problems, and regularly scheduled eye exams, a child will be visually prepared for challenges of the classroom and optimum learning during the school year," says Dr. Simons.

THE CLASSROOM CAN BE a demanding place for a child, especially one who has a vision disorder. Not being able to see the blackboard or focus on print in a textbook can result in poor grades. "To make sure your child's vision is at its sharpest this school year, watch him or her for symptoms of vision problems and schedule a complete eye exam," recommends Dr. Michael Simons, vice president of professional affairs, Pearle Vision Center.

Child's income counts

Recent changes in the tax law mean that some dependents with investment income who did not have to file previously must now file a federal income tax return according to the Internal Revenue Service.

"Individuals who qualify to be claimed as dependents on another person's tax return must file a tax return for 1987 if they had investment income more than $500 or they had gross income exceeding their allowable standard deduction," District Director John D. Johnson said.

The allowable standard deduction for 1987 for a dependent child who is not blind is the greater of $500 or the child's earned income, but not more than $2,540.

In other words, a dependent child who is not blind and who does not work gets a standard deduction of $500. If this dependent child works and earns more than $500, the standard deduction equals earned income, but may not exceed $2,540.

For more information you can order Publication 922, "New Tax Rules for Children and Dependents" by calling 1-800-424-3676.

Shopping for a hearing aid

The Executive Office of Elder Affairs recently urged seniors to be informed and comparative shoppers when buying hearing aids. Older adults often experience hearing loss, but the degree and kind of loss varies with each individual. Proper fitting of a hearing aid is crucial to maximize its benefits. Overcharges for devices can be avoided.

Some tips to remember when shopping for a hearing aid include the following:

1. See your doctor first. A hearing aid may not be recommended. Some hearing losses are medically or surgically treatable.

2. Be tested by an audiologist before purchasing a hearing aid. An audiologist who is specifically trained and certified to evaluate hearing should conduct:

a) Pure tone testing to determine the degree and configuration of the hearing loss.

b) Speech discrimination testing to determine the intelligibility of speech in each ear.

c) Uncomfortable listening level testing to determine the maximum power for a hearing aid.

3. Compare prices. Hearing aids cost approximately $450 to $600 for each instrument. Medicaid will pay for hearing evaluations and hearing aids. Medicaid eligible individuals should contact Medicaid-participating doctors and suppliers.

4. Consider the type of hearing loss and the ability to handle the different sizes of aids. The smaller in-the-ear hearing aids are designed for mild to moderate hearing losses. Individuals with arthritis and poor-hand dexterity may have difficulty manipulating the small batteries and volume control of the aid.

5. Receive proper instruction in the care and use of the aid on the day of delivery. Insist on satisfactory answers to any questions about the aid. A 30-day trial period with no obligation to purchase should be allowed.

The consumer must pay for the hearing evaluation and the minimal charge for making an ear impression even if he/she decides not to keep the hearing aid.

6. Check that the hearing aid has a one-year warranty provided by the manufacturer, during which time any necessary repairs would be made free of charge.

7. Replace a hearing aid when it no longer provides adequate benefit because of hearing level change or if it requires frequent repairs. The life expectancy of a hearing aid is approximately four years.

Hearing-impaired individuals should not settle for uncomfortable, whistling, and over-priced devices. Consumers can protect themselves by smart shopping.

For more information, call the Executive Office of Elder Affairs toll-free hotline at 1-800-882-2003.

Modern male judged

MALE PAGEANT

State finals for the Mr. Massachusetts-Male America Pageant will be held at the Salem State College Theater on Saturday, October 17th.

The Mr. Massachusetts-Male America Pageant is the first national pageant dedicated to today's modern male. Contestants are judged in three categories: interview (50 percent), swim wear (25 percent), and formal attire (25 percent) with additional points for good looks.

"Unlike its body building predecessors, our pageant system emphasizes overall appearance and offers opportunities in the fields of modeling and acting that have long been available to women," said Dida Hagan, State Director.

The public is welcomed to join the 1987 contestants when they compete for the Massachusetts title as well as an array of valuable prizes. Tickets are $10 at the door, $8 in advance and $6 with a college I.D. For further information call Pageant Headquarters at (617) 397-8500.

SQUARE DANCE

Learn how to Square Dance! Beginners welcomed. Cosmopolitans Square Dance Club is sponsoring classes every Friday night from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 95 Woburn St., Reading. Refreshments. Admission is $1 per person. For further information call 246-4900, 599-5668 or 596-1231.

OBSERVING THE SKY

The Massachusetts Audubon Society is offering a morning workshop on the sky and weather on Saturday, October 24 at the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield. This workshop will heighten your sky awareness as well as teach you to interpret cloud formations, wind changes, temperature highs and lows, as well as to predict weather! Participants will learn how to read and interpret instruments and how to keep daily weather records. There will be some discussion on the effect of plants on the atmosphere and how weather conditions affect animal life as well. Pre-registration is required. Fee: $8 ($6 for Mass. Audubon members). For more information or to register call 927-1122.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE WORTH?

The Jones up the street seem to live like millionaires. They have a very expensive car in the driveway of their brand new house. And they always seem to be going out to dinner or on vacation. They must be wealthy.

Don't be so sure of that, says Donald Dupre, CPA, Peat Marwick Main of Springfield and a member of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants, Inc. Lifestyles is not always a reflection of wealth. The Jones may owe a substantial amount of money on their new home while sinking even more money into vacations and dinners that add nothing to their net worth. And net worth is the ultimate measure of wealth.

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

"You may owe only a small mortgage on your house, your car is paid off and you've got a nice little nest egg in the form of an IRA, savings accounts and some stocks and bonds. In short, your net worth is probably much more than the free-spending Joneses," according to Dupre.

Simply put, net worth is the difference between what you own and what you owe. For example, if you recently bought a $200,000 home, but owe $180,000, the house contributes only $20,000 to your net worth. On the other hand, if you own a $100,000 house and owe only $5,000 on it, the house contributes $95,000 to your net worth. To calculate your net worth, add up the market value of all of your assets: home, car, bank accounts, investments and retirement assets. From this, subtract your liabilities: mortgage, car loans, consumer loans and the like. The figure you come up with is your net worth. But what does it tell you?

Net worth is, in effect, a snapshot of your financial standing at any given time. As such, it is most useful when compared to other "snapshots" taken at different times. The comparison allows you to gauge your financial movement — are you accumulating wealth or losing it? If your financial goal is to reduce your debt load and build up assets, a semi-annual or annual net worth calculation will let you chart your progress.

From net worth to today's male, COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for everyone. But we miss a few and could use your help in discovering and publicizing events of interest to all. Write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. We span as great a distance as we can.

Parents with asthmatic kids

On Thursday, Oct. 15, Dr. Gary Goldfarb will meet with PAK, Parents of Asthmatic

Kids, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital, 41

Highland Avenue. The meeting, to be held in the hospital's board room, will focus on asthma as it affects children and their families.

Dr. Goldfarb is a pediatrician and a member of the medical staff at the hospital. PAK, which meets several times each year, is an ongoing support and education group. Each meeting is free and open to the public. Individuals desiring further information are encouraged to call the Winchester Hospital Social Services Department, 729-9000, Ext. 3106.

Halloween safety tips

Another alert from the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's prevention campaign:

CHILDREN:

1. Go out with a buddy.
2. Don't go inside strangers' houses.
3. Discard unwrapped goodies.
4. Use a flashlight after dark.
5. If costumed, wear something bright colored (white preferred).

6. Tell your parents what your "route" will be.

ADULTS:

1. Accompany children under 12.
2. Provide a house party instead of "Trick or Treat."
3. If driving, use special care.
4. Give out individually wrapped goodies.
5. For security sake, try to be at home. Dark houses invite trouble.
6. Light up front (e.g. porch lights) of house.
